THE MINISTRY OF WOMAN.

How beautiful the ministry
Of woman's gentle hand!
How soft love's attributes that spring
At her divine command!

For weal or woe, for good or ill, About man's careless life She weaves the blossoms of her heart As mother, maid or wife.

She leads his feet up from the pit, She bids his spirit rise, Sometimes by her superior will, Sometimes by pleading eyes.

The Salvation Army return hearty thanks to the friends here for their generous aid in raising $74.00 in Woburn towards completing the Memorial Building in New York City.

— Mr. Richard Briggs, the Salem st. marble cutter, died last Saturday of pneumonia aged 75 years. He was native of Scotland but has been a resident of Woburn many years.

— Mr. Freeman Blake of Montclair, N. J., has been visiting Mrs. E. N. Blake and family this week. His wife will spend the summer in California and will start for there next week.

— Mr. F. H. Lewis has been engaged as organist and musical director at the First Congregational Church. A chorus choir under his instruction will furnish the vocal music. Mr. Lewis enters upon his duties next Sunday.

Wednesday evening, April 10.

— It will pay the people to keep run of the date on which the St. Charles Catholic Total Abstinence Society will give their 24th annual concert and dance at Lyceum Hall, namely, Apr. 18. This Society, one of the oldest and best of the kind in Woburn, is richly deserving of a liberal public patronage. It is composed of a large canabre of as likely young men as live in our city and has an Auxiliary comprising many of the most prominent Catholic young ladies, in this community. Both are doing a good work for the cause of temperance and deserve the encouragement and support of all people interested in that cause. They give an annual concert and dance to raise funds for Society and Diarrhea and support of all people interested in that cause. They give an annual concert and dance to raise funds for Society and Diarrhea subject to staticks of billous colic to learn their usefulness—and it is only fair and lust that the public take hold and help them out.

Hermann the great will be at the Boston Museum next week. Mr. Hermann's newest illusion which he has named "The Artist's Dream," was suggested to the magician by an occurance in real life in which the late artist De Gamut figured. De Gamut had painted the picture of his ideal and became impressed with the ideal and became impressed with the ideal that it was possessed of real life. This preyed upon his mind until he died eventually in a mad house. Hermann has combined this event into a short play which he brings to be a remarkable feat in magic. The entertainment is wonderful.

"Triby" will remain at the Park for one week more. The original cast will probably not be seen here again, as the company, after its New York engagement, will tour the other principal cities of the country for the next year. The endorsement given to "Trilby" by the Boston public will add greatly to the commercial nature of the play. Thousands who have seen "Trilby" at the Park have read Du Maurier's novel and went to the play because of the great merit the piece has and their friends go because everyone likes it. THE BOWDOIN SQUARE.

The attraction at this nopular place of amusement for next week will be "The Danger Signal" which will be prevented with a strong cast, which have energy and stage appliances which have this play a grand success. There are many trying situations and incidents in "The Danger Signal" which make it very amusing and entertaining. "The Blue Jeans" will be seen tonight and twice tomorrow. The house has been crowded the past week and the popularity of "Blue Jeans" increases with each performance. KEITH'S NEW THEATRE.

Mr. Keith must have been greatly pleased at the interest manifested at the anniversary performances that were given at his new theatre the past week. This week there is equally as large bill and the audiences present go to show that a good thing always finds enthusiastic support. Leo Dervalto introduces his marvelous "Spiral Stairway." Meers Bros. English equilibrists and wire performers. Leu Dockstader the genius of burnt cork. The Manhattan four, a comedy quartette, Gouget, the French bicycle expert. Vanola, the Mexican fool juggler. Unthen, the footless wonder and many other well known attractions.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE. At the Grand Opera House, week of April 8, another new "fun show" is to entertain the mirth loving theatre-goers of Boston. It is entitled "McFadden's Elopement," and great things may be expected of it. The piece, "McFadden's Elopement," is by Frank Dumont and it was accepted by Managers Davis and Keogh after they had examined more than two hundred farce-comedies offered them. It is in three acts; the first, the farm of a cranky inventor, the second in a flat in New York City, the third in the country near a female seminary.

whe cathedral at Monza. The last three were Charles V, at Bologna in 1530; Napoleon, May 26, 1805, in the famous pinnacled cathedral at Milan, and in the same place Ferdinand I, Sept. 6, 1838.

There are other treasures guarded in the church at Monza—chalices and holy that vases, gems and crowns of silver and gold. These are venerated and worgold. These are venerated and worshiped, and many of them have been there since the time of Theodolinda but others have been placed there at different times by the Lombardian sovereigns. There was formerly a crown in the church that had been given as a votive offering by Agliulfo, the husband of Theodolinda. It contained the inscription, "Agliulfo, by the grace of God, glorious man and king of Italy, offering to San Giovanni in the church of Monza." The inscription was noteworthy because in it was used for the first time the words "gratia Dei" (by the grace of God), which have since been adopted by all the sovereigns. This crown was melted and sold in 1804, the year before Napoleon was crowned with the iron Napoleon was crowned with the iron Monza, the sleepy old town containing the cathedral that guards this historic crown, lies in the shadow of the Alps. Looking toward them one sees the Alps. Looking toward them one sees the snow glistening on their peaks. Turning in the opposite direction the pinnacles of Milan's cathedral can be seen white and shining in the sunlight, while above the sky is blue, and at one's feet flows the peaceful Lambro. It is a scene of quiet beauty and suggests no thoughts of stormy times and greatrevolutions, and yet such have taken place in and about Monza. In late years many momentous questions of states thave been momentous questions of state have been settled here.—Chicago Record.

THAT IRON CROWN.

IT RESTS ON A VELVET CUSHION IN THE CATHEDRAL AT MONZA.

It Was Used In Crowning Thirty-four Monarchs—Conflicting Stories of 1ts Origin and Career—Other Treasures Guarded In the Church at Monza.

"Let no other hand dare to touch it, said Napoleon as he placed the iron crown upon his brow.

It seems to have been a weakness of the great Napoleon to crown himself, for he also performed the act in the Cathedral of Notre Dame at Paris. In the one instance he rudely repulsed a bishop, and in the other a pope, who were about to place a crown upon his bead.

The mystery of the origin of the iron crown, the interesting history connected with it, the noble—and ignoble—heads it has adorned, all make it an object of importance.

Now, after crowning 34 monarchs, it rests on a velvet cushion in a glass case in the cathedral at Monza, locked and sealed and guarded. Only by the payment of $1 can the curious obtain even a glimpse of it. It is composed of six quadrangular pieces of gold united by hinges and is adorned with 22 gans of various colors and 24 enameled jewels. Lining the inner part is the much disputed strip of iron. The popular tradition that this strip is made out of a nail from the true cross is gradually becoming disbelieved, although the clergy still maintain the right of the strip to be considered holy.

The story is that Helena, the mother of Constantine, found the mails with which Christ was crucified, and of one of them made a horsskhoe and of the other than the right of the other than the other than the other than the other than the right of the other than the other than

be considered holy.

The story is that Helena, the mother of Constantine, found the nails with which Christ was cracified, and of one of them made a horseshoe and of the other a diadem. The diadem, all of gold, but lined in the interior with a thin strip of iron, was given by Pope Gregory the Great to Theodolinda, and by her to the Church of San Giovanni Battista, which she had founded at Monza. There is another crown in the church given by Theodolinda and called for her, but as it is of gold and makes no claim to being holy, being simply a votive offering, no particular interest attaches to it.

Some writers say that the nail was not placed in the iron crown, but in the helm of Constantine; that the lining strip of iron is simply a band to hold the inflexible crown has been considered a sacred relic, and discussions and suppositions have been advanced in regard to it. It is not mentioned in the reign of Theodolinda, nor until some centuries afterward. Those who oppose the idea that the lining strip of iron is the holy nail say that if it was, the Milannese would have resented with the sword the calling of it a crown of straw, as did Rafael Toscana in his verses:

With iron, here (in Milan) they encircle the brown.

as did Raical Toscana in his verses:
With iron here (in Milan) they encircle the brow.
The Pethagoreans held that the consa did Rafael Toscana in his verses:
With iron here (in Milan) they encircle the brow.
With straw in Monza and with glittering gold in Rome.
There were other iron crowns in the history of the past, among them one made for Henry VII, in the form of a garland of laurels, ornamented with rich and precious stones, but all of these have been lost or stolen, so that the one at Monza alone remains.

Between the years of 1859 and 1866 the iron crown was absent from the little velvet cushion in Monza. It was carried off by the Austrians, but was returned in 1866 to the king of Italy.
The portraits of all the kings who have worn this crown are also preserved in the cathedral at Monza. The last three were Charles V, at Bologna in 1530; Napoleon, May 26, 1806, in the famous Trollope and Whist.

Trollope was attracted, in the first instance, by the genial society, but continued to resort there from pure love of the game itself, and, though, as he tells us, he often felt inclined "to swear off," like Rip Van Winkle, the habit grew too strong for him, and, after all, he is disposed to agree with Talleyrand that, when one has turned 60, life without cards is but a triste vicillesse.

Trollope, as might be supposed, was by no means an ideal whist player. His eager and almost boisterous temperament was hardly suited to a game that requires the utmost self possession and coolness from its votaries. But his play was steady and consistent. He utilized his strong suit and was sound on the subject of trumps, and au reste he was business of the strong suit and was sound on the subject of trumps, and au reste he was a fact in the strong suit and was sound on the subject of trumps, and au reste he was a stance of the strong suit and was sound on the subject of trumps, and au reste he was a stance and so in.

Many towns in Evone bevolved this strange remark, but none could understand the meaning of it, and naturally they were afraid to ask. Douglass and the Negro.

Douglass had no patterne with negroes who bemoaned their hard fate as settled by the color of their skin, or who looked to the interposition of laws as their only means of being socially uplifted. He used to preach the gospet of labor and money making. In a lecture delivered to the negroes of Staunton, Va., several years ago, he expressed his respect for their religious aspirations, but urged them not to trust altogether to prayer, but to go to work honestly, systematically and conscientionsly. He himself, he said, had prayed for three long years that freedom might come to him, but it never came until prayers got down into his legs and carried him away.

down into his legs and carried him away.

He did not approve any "exodus" of the colored race from the south either, but said: "Stay where you are, and so conduct yourselves that men will be bound to respect you. Work with head and hands. Seek to acquire knowledge as well as property, and in time you may have the honor of going to congress, for, if the negro can stand congress, congress ought to be able to stand the negro. Information and enjoyment seemed to be linked in the hour spent in the Y. M. C. A. parlor, the place of meeting of the W. E. S. League, Saturday afternoon, April 6. The room was filled with interested listeners; it was the time for the regular meeting, which has been wisely changed from Monday evening, the first each month, to Saturday afternoon of the same.

Upon this occasion Miss Benneson, a member of the Massachusetts Bar, who has spoken with great interest from her observation of women in foreign lands, spoke to the members of the League and many interested friends.

The meeting was formally opened at 3 o'clock, Mrs. Stearns, President, in the Chair; in the absence of the Secretary, Mrs. Gifford, Jenme E. Skinner was chosen to keep the records. Minuters, M. Strout and Mrs. Delin A. Chark sang very sweetly, "Kind Words," musts by Pinsuti, Miss E. Minette Dow, accompanist.

After a welcome to Winchester friends the President introduced Miss Benneson in a few well-chosen words, whose subject had been announced as "Women Elsewhere."

Last Saturday morning Mr. Uriah Perkins of this part of the city, for 8 years a faithful and trusted employee of Hart & Co's Express as driver, had one of his legs broken below the knee by his horse while standing near him. He had driven the horse 2 years and although it had a habit of sometimes throwing out a hind foot when anyone was nigh no attention was ever paid to it, but the foot got in its work quite effectually on Mr. Perkins's leg. The bone was badly shattered and the patient was taken to the Mass. Gen. Hospital where his leg was amputated on Wednesday resulting in his death on yesterday morning. He was a good man and will be severely mourned.

"I WOULD RATHER DIE!

On the third floor of an ordinary lodging house in the City of Brooklyn was found the body of a lodger, with a revolver by his side and a bullet in his head. In his pocket was found a book in which was written:

"I am tired of life because I am suffering from consumption. I would try to work but it is useless while I have no hope of getting better."

What a commentary on our boasted civilization! A poor wretch, suffering from what he supposed was an incurable disease, snuffs out his flickering life with a bullet. Where did he get the idea that his disease was incurable? From an old-time theory which modern investigation has exploded. Many diseases may be considered incurable, but that does not make them so. During the past few years scientists have discovered, in the tuberculosis germs, the cause of consumption. Their investigations have found a cure for the malady, in Ozone and Guaiacol. These agents destroy the germs which produce the disease. Compounded with pure Cod Liver Oil, they form Ozomulsion, which is sold by all Druggists. This remedy cures consumption and all lung troubles. It first destroys the cause and disappears down stairs, while poor Chop has to come slowly after.

In Engine 56, in Eighty-third street, there is a spotted fire dog, Nellie, who goes to every fire, and, though not very accomplished, she has rendered good service. She runs ahead of the engine barking all the way to a fire. And never does she wag her tail again until the fire is out and the firemen returning.

Once when Nellie was ill a box was made for her to lie in down in the cellar, and as there was no idea that she would go to the fire she was not locked up. By and by the alarm bell rang and the firemen rushed away. Right in the heart of the fire, where the flames were raging flercely, was heard a familiar heart of the fire, where the flames were raging flercely, was heard a familiar bark, and, to the astonishment of all, Nellie came rushing out to call the attention of the men to some one hemmed in on the other side.

Nellie's pet fireman carried her tenderly home, not even letting her feet touch the wagon, so careful was he of her. But, although Nellie was very ill, she learned no lesson from her experiher. But, although Nellie was very II, she learned no lesson from her experience. Only four days later she left a nest of day-old puppies and went to a fire, although she must have known that they would suffer during her absence and that she herself had no right to be there.

The pet of this engine house, next to Nell, has been for some years a large

The pet of this engine house, next to Nell, has been for some years a large gray horse. "The Bill Hoss" he is called by the firemen. "The Bill Hoss" is very intelligent, and when he is being exercised in the street after a fire he walks up to the sidewalk to "speak" to every lady that passes. If any lady visits the engine house and does not stop to rub his nose and pet him, he stamps and acts in a very unruly manner. He is very jealous of the other horses and draws the line at being "shown of" more than a dozen times a day. If by any chance the bell is sounded and he is made to come out and get into his harness more than that number of times, he "gets sour," as the captain says, and squeals peevishly to show his displeasure.

The fire department does not allow the houses to keep more than two pets on account of the possible cost of their food to the city. But it is certain that the few animals now in the possession of "the boys" are useful to them and of "the boys" are useful to them and not only answer the purposes of passing away many an hour, but render real service in time of danger.

"Would there be more accidents if there were no mascots?" is often asked. And every firemen will answer "Yes."—New York Herald.

SCHOOLBOY KNOWLEDGE.

Some of the Fonny Blunders of Which Pupils Are Capable.

The roll of our naval heroes is still increasing, for a schoolteacher has recently learned from her pupils that "Shakespeare became a French and Milton a Dutch admiral." Musulmans, however, was not, of course, "the name given to French soldiers," nor does suffrage mean "hunger," though some times it is not remotely connected with thirst.

The state of the s observed the germs which produce the dissesse. Compounded with piper God Láver Oil, they form Ozomulsion, which is sold by all Druggists. This remedy cares consumption and stretch the poisonous germs which produce it—and then restores the patient to perfect health. The Conceand (Paissock Little) and strength. An Appreciative Welshman.

London Truth has the following:

"The following tasty inscription is from a family mausoleum erected by a Welsh landowner and magistrate in Merion ethshire. To expend turf winnings on crecting a tomb looks, at first sight, eccentric, but possibly the builder was moved by the reflection that betting has brought many to their graves:

In this remarkable action the Americans sustained a loss of only 4 killed and 10 wounded, while the English had 35 killed and 42 wounded. After the battle was over the two English commanders, while aboard the Constitution, got into a dispute as to the result, each charging the other with the responsibility of the defeat and claiming that if such and such a maneuver had been made the American would have been captured. Captain Stewart, who overheard the discussion, finally said:

"Gentlemen, there is no use in getting warm about it. It would have been all the same whatever you might have done. If you doubt that, I will put you all on board again, and you can try it over."

His name is Ramon, and there are few better known men in Seville than he. It is said that his father was the public executioner of the city, and, when he died, some foolish people teld Ramon, then a lad of rather weak intellect, that he would be compelled to succeed his parent in his ghastly office.

The terror created by such a destiny fairly unhinged his mind, and he became the sad, innocent lunatic he is at present. He has wandered about the streets for years, a gentle, kind and honest man.

No one knows where he sleeps, for he has no home. It is supposed that in winter he crawls near the furnaces of the brick works and in summer huddles in any quiet corner. He never importunes for charity, like other beggars,

The bed in our country can only lay claim to some 800 years or so of active use. The learned find themselves unable to say for certain when Anglo-Saxon man exchanged the hard bosom of mother earth for the artificial but soothing delights of the bed. But, roughly speaking, one may place the introduction of the bed into England at about the tenth that of the successors of Mesmer to approach the hypnotic sleep from the side of science rather than of charlatanism. After speaking of the heightened sense of hearing under mesmerism and of the increase of muscular precision, they make, he says, "feats of phonic initiation" possible which are truly astonishing.

"Many patients will thus repeat accurately what is spoken in any language, and they may be also able to sing correctly and simultaneously both words and music of songs in any language, in the words as well as music so instantaneously as to accommand the successors of Mesmer to approach the hypnotic of the heightened sense of hearing under mesmerism and of the increase of muscular precision, they make he head processors of Mesmer to approach the hypnotic of the heightened sense of hearing under mesmerism and of the increase of muscular precision, they make he head processors of Mesmer to approach the head processors of Mesmer to approach the head precision, the story processor. previously equally familiar with both

"In this manner a patient of mine who, when awake, knew not the grainmar of even her own language, and who had very little knowledge of music, was enabled to follow Mile. Jenny Lind correctly in songs in different languages, giving both words and music so correctly and so simultaneously with Jenny Lind that two parties in the room could not for some time imagine that there were two voices, so perfectly did they accord, both in musical tone and vocal pronunciation of perfectly did they accord, both in musical tone and vocal pronunciation of Swiss, German and Italian songs. She was equally successful in accompanying Mile. Lind in one of her extemporaneous effusions, which was long and extremely difficult, an elaborate chromatic exercise, which the celebrated cantatrice tried by way of taxing the powers of the somnambulist to the numest. When awake, the girl durst not even attempt to do anything of the sort, and, after all, wonderful as it was, it was only phonic imitation, for she did not understand the meaning of a single word of the foreign language which she uttered so correctly."

This is exactly Trilby's case, only more so, except that there is nothing to indicate in the report that "the patient" remembered Jenny Lind's songs and could reproduce them, but the forma-over my head and a feminine laugh arrested me, and I looked up. It was a curious laugh, low and controlled, but with a malicious mockery in it that seemed a fit ending to some scathing speech, and just inside the open lattice, her arms resting on the sill and chin dropped lightly on her clasped hands, leaned the most beautiful woman I have ever seen. It was but a glimpse of auburn hair in a white forchead, of eyes like brown pansies, and parted lips that looked like scarlet petals against the perfect pallor of her reunded cheeks, but it is photographed forever on my brain, for as I looked a man's hand and arm, brown, lean and supple, with the nervous fingers, on one of which a green stone flashed, clutching a poniard, came round her neck and plunged the dagger, slantingwise, deep down into her heart. The smile on the beautiful lips quivered and fixed, but no sound came from them, and the eyes turned up and fixed, and as she swayed toward the open window the spell that was upon me broke, and with a shuddering cry I fled. On, on—blindly, madly, desperately—with no sense or thought for feeling save an overwhelming horror. A red mist seemed to close around me and wall me in, and as I fought against A red mist seemed to close around me and wall me in, and as I fought against it I felt my strength fail, and all was dark and still. dark and still.

Somewhere in the darkness a voice speaking, the touch of a hand on my face, a glimpse of light, a sense of pain that some one else was suffering, then consciousess and memory. My father's anxious face bent over me, and his voice, as though from a distance, said:

above a very evident enjoyment of a girl's society and conversation. He had already learned most of my tastes and occupations and drawn from me, by a magnetic sympathy, some confessions as to my inmost thoughts and aspirations, telling me in return that he was traveling wearily in search of rest authoritatively ordered by his doctor, and he was deploring his lonely bachelorhood, when my attention was attracted by some quaint spoons half hidden among other old dull silver things in a forsaken looking little shop to which our wanderings had led us through harrow, dings byways. "I wonder how much they are," I said, and asking me to wait outside Colonel Haughton disappeared into the obscure interior. The sound of a casement opening just over my head and a feminine laugh arrested me, and I looked up. It was a curious laugh, low and controlled, but

"Theo, are you better, dear? No, don't get up—rest and take this." And sinking back I vaguely understood that I was in my own room at the hotel, and that a stranger, a doctor no doubt, was present. He enjoined absolute quiet till he saw me again and asked that he should be informed at once if there was any recurrence of fainting. Later when I was in a condition to explain the origin of this attack he would be able to prescribe for me. The light of dawn was struggling through the curtains, was struggling through the curtains, and I knew that I must have been unto the hotel. "Do you know, I think it was your ring."

"I would never wear it again if I thought that," he answered. Then, as we reached the garden and my father passed on to the salon, "Theo," he continued, "stay a moment. I have some thing to tell you. My darling, I love you. I love you more than life. Will you try to care for me a little in return? I want you for my wife. I worship you!"

Ah, Lionel, beloved, it scarcely need-An, Lionet, beloved, it scarcely need-ed the assurance of your love for me to bring me the certainty of mine for you! If ever the gates of heaven open to mor-tal eyes, they stood ajar for us that night. The starlit garden was changed into a veritable Eden, and we walked with wondering joy, therein and recked with wondering joy therein and recked not of an angel with flaming sword, who waited silently to drive us from our paradise into outer darkness.

our paradise into outer darkness.

It was scarcely noon the following day when we began the ascent of the Dent du Chat, one of the mountain peaks that tower above Aix.

"I feel as if I had wings and must soar into a higher atmosphere," I had said gayly, "and since we cannot fly let us climb. I want to reach the top of that mountain with you and leave the world behind us. Let us go."

We were to ride up a certain distance and then diamount and gain the highest point on foot. Three guides accompanied us, following leisurely, talking and ges-ticulating to each other and paying lit-tle heed to us, saye an occasional frantic tle heed to us, save an occasional frantic rush at the mules when we approached an awkward corner of the zigzag pathway, which had the effect of adding a momentary uncertainty and danger to our otherwise tranquil ascent. We were not sorry when, after two or three hours of this progress, the guides told us we must halt, and that they would remain in charge of the mules till we returned to them. It was rather a toilsome climb, and the sun was beating fiercely down upon us, but we felt rewarded, when, not far from the top, we reached a plateau where we could rost, while a cool breeze from the distant snowy peaks revived us. an awkward corner of the zigzag path-

"Let me come with you," I entreated, but he shook his head and said he ed, but he shook his head and said he was better and would be quite well if I would do as he wished. Then he began the descent. I watched him for a few moments, till he was lost to view at a bend of the mountain, before returning to my seat. But the sun had gone in, and it seemed cold and dark, and a dull, heavy weight rested on my heat. heavy weight rested on my heart. I was lonely there without him, and the moments dragged on slowly and wearily, till I felt the suspense and stillness unendurable.

I decided I would wait only five min-ntes more and then would follow him, and leaning back wearily I closed my eyes. A sort of faintness came over me, for I was tired, and the sudden change from perfect happiness to this anxiety, this vague alarm, had chilled and stupe fied me.

It may have been a few moments aft er, or longer, I cannot tell, but I became aware suddenly that, although no sound of footsteps had reached me, there was some one near. I remained absolutely still and listened intently, and though there was no tangible movement or sound there was an impalpable stir in the stillness round me, some vages breath that seemed to speak of danger I felt paralyzed with the same powerlessness that had seized me when the tragedy at the window was enacted be tragedy at the window was enacted before my eyes. It flashed into my mind that perhaps it was a thief, attracted by the notes and ring lying beside me, who had crept behind, believing that I slept.
My hand was almost touching them, and as I glanced down to see if I could reach them without moving I noticed with a thrill of indescribable horror that the green stone was sparkling beilliant.

As a token of his filial love and respect Bud Somers, of Abilene, Kan., ent his father two scorpions, a tarantula, four centipedes and a couple of lively rattlesnakes on Christmas Day. The old gentleman sent them to his tailor, to whom he owed a bill, and the tailor, being a member of a local nilitia company, was buried with military honors. There is a pawnshop in Eile, Bavaria, that was established in 1411. It is still conducted in the name of the original proprietor, and has its first unredeemed pledge—a pair of silver spurs—preserved in a glass case. If redeemed now more than a billion dollars interest would have to be paid.

ACCORD, N. Y.—Under the old school method it was believed that any disease of cancerous growth could never be cured. The surgeon's knife was resorted to, but the old trouble was sure to break out again.

Since the discovery of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, all this has been changed—the action of the Favorite Remedy upon the system leaves no trace of poison in the blood, the seeds of disease are expelled and lost health restored. A notable case of the and as I glanced down to see if I could reach them without moving I noticed with a thrill of indescribable horror that the green stone was sparkling brilliantly with a thousand rays of scintillating light.

And then—something stirred behind me, and round my neck crept a hand, holding a short, sharp knife, such as Indians carry, and poised it over my heart as if to strike. With an instantaneous desperate throb of agonized revolt against my impending fate I grasped the ring and flung it toward the precipice. As it flashed through the air the stone ere it fell. He stumbled, missed his footing, and with one terrible cry and his hands grasping the air wildly he fell backward into the abyss.

And it was Lionel, my beloved!

When the guides came to look for us, I told them smillingly that the English gentleman had dropped his ring, and in trying to find it had slipped and fallen over the precipice.

THE BOSTON SUBWAY.

The bill to repeal the Boston Sub-way Act is a dead cock in the pit. It squeezed through the House, which is famous this year for taking the wrong side of almost every public measure, but nobody in the Senate wants it, and but nobody in the Senate wants it, and Gov. Greenhalge stands ready to veto it should it by any possibility pass in the upper body. The subway is a sure thing despite the howlings and cavortings of a few subsidized papers and people in Boston—and out.

called a temperance body.

From a true temperance standpoint the measure is vicious through and through. It recognizes rumselling as a legitimate calling; it confers respectability on it; it would license a trade that is intrinsically a moral soil and a legitimate calling. that is intrinsically a moral evil and a sin. It is fundamentally wrong, and no person who is thoroughly imbued with genuine temperance principles, and has brains enough to think, or is not a confirmed faddist, could with any propriety endorse a sincle feature of it.

was current on Woburn streets that Rev. George A. Crawford, D. D.. pastor of the M. E. Church in this city, had been solicited by the managers to take a promiuent position on the Editorial Staff of the Standard, a daily recently established in Boston, and that he is now seriously and prayerfully considering the proposition. Of course, the JOURNAL fully appreciates the unreliable character of street gossip, and therefore declines to give the above report its endorsement.

The Inquest.

In view of possible future legal complications Judge Johnson turned over the Loring boiler explosion inquest to his Associate, Judge George S. Little-field, who opened the investigation on strucky, April 6, adjourned to 10, then to last Saturday, April 6, adjourned to 10, then to last Saturday, when the testimony process.

On the evening of the day on which the catastrophy occurred an expert said he had examined the wrecked boiler, measured it, secured all available facts concerning the dreadful affair, and coded by saying: "in my judgment, the real cause of the explosion will nover the known." The testimony given at the inquest largely sustains that view of the cause of the explosion will nover the known. closed by saying: "in my judgment, the real cause of the explosion will never be known." The testimony given at the inquest largely sustains that view of the case.

While no one would question the interest of the witnesses, is evertheless true that their stories concerning what happened, how it occurred, and what was done immediately preceding the explosion, differ widely, give various colorings, and lead to conflicting conclusions concerning it. The trouble with the boiler in the night the failure of Mr. Ramsdell's engineer and others to locate and remedy it, the supposed improved condition of affairs at 6.30 a. m., the examination of the water guages and steam indicator by Mr. George Parker, the Superintendent are cardinal points concerning which no satisfactory explanation has been, or can probably ever be given.

During the investigation which was cumber of witnesses were examined Mr. Parker being the first and most important one, and some Attorneys for the parties interested in the money aspect of the case were present. Considering the terrors of the scene and the moment of the explosion and immediately after, it is not at all surprising that conflicting stories were told concerning it, and that hardly any two of the employees agreed exactly in their statements.

So far as we could see, the inquest served only to furnish materials for new theories of to strengthen old ones. A thic close of fast Saturday's proceedings of the case of the case of the case were from any sewer system were formally inaugusted on Canal street near Hudson street.

A WOMAN'S KISS.

Mrs. Maine was thinking as seriously as she could ever think at all of marry ing again. She was a young and pretty widow, and when she first appeared in the conventional weeds that so pointedly indicate the presence of grief for a de parted husband London went mad about parted husband London went mad about her. Fair women whose sponses were still hale and hearty took to going out in black crape ball dresses, and for a time colors became almost unfashion-able. But when the appointed year of mourning had run its course Mrs. Maine stopped wearing black with a light heart. She was passionately found of bright things of eav music, of the of bright things, of gay music, of the of bright things, of gay music, of the frivolities that are supposed to make life endurable. She put away her somber gowns and in a short time had almost forgotten that she had ever been mar-ried. Although an English woman, she forgotten that she had ever been mar-ried. Although an English woman, she was inclined to take the French view of matrimony and to consider that it rather meant emancipation than love— that it was, in fact, a sort of latchkey lay by the man whom she took "fo Her husband had possessed a fortune and an inherited weakness of the lungs. He died of the latter an bequeathed to her the former. Now, when she chanced to think of him, she not unnaturally blessed his memory. Her freedom was absolutely complete.

Her freedom was absolutely complete. She could go into a numery or dance, which ever she chose. She did neither precisely, but visited the playhouses, was often to be seen with lively little parties sipping at the Savoy, drove down very frequently to Hurlingham or Ranelagh and spent her days and nights in society, desiring nothing better, perfectly satisfied and perfectly successful. Everybody called her a dear little woman, and the only luxury that she could an, and the only luxury that she could not command was an enemy.

This sort of thing went on until she

It was a jingle of music, a ring o' bells, a masked ball without a midnight of unmasking, a battle in which the only weapons were flowers. She enjoyed it all immensely until she was 28, and then a certain reachings began to creen over her and weariness began to creep over her and to frighten her. She was forced to realto frighten her. She was forced to real-ize, with a strong reluctance, that among her many possessions she num-bered the bizarre capacity of tiring of accustomed things which has wrecked so many lives and wrinkled so many faces. Her frivolous friends bored her. She was passing into another period— was bending to listen to fresh voices. A love of fame, and of those who

Henceforth she loved only to be with those who had done something, or were in course of doing something. She gave up going to balls and began to search about in her mind for talents.

Could not she do something, too—write a story, paint a picture, cause a world to weep or laugh or gape at some deed of hers? She was tired of being known as a beauty. Compliments paid to her features fatigued her. She wanted people to adore her mind. That they found it difficult to do so was a source of the she wanted people to adore her mind. found it difficult to do so was a source of annoyance to her. Only when she had made an effort in literature and failed did she become less egotistical. Her vanity evaporated like a little mist, and, unable to be a successful writer herself, she was at last content to live in the work of others. She was resolved to have a salon and to inspire talent to mighty deeds. Rising men attracted her greatly, and she surrounded herself with them, impregnating their atmosphere with the power and dignity that emanate from the fully risen. Intellectual failure her devil.

Men both rising and risen admired and appreciated her for her beauty and her sympathy, but there was one who learned to feel far more than admiration, and he was the immediate cause of Mrs. Maine's serious mood today. His name was Roger Siade, and he was an artist, very celebrated and very picturesque. He was also intensely ambitious and not disinclined to add a successful marriage to the weapons with which he intended to fight and completely conquer the world.

Mrs. Maine sat alone in her delicate drawing room—a white drawing room—with an ivory carpet, snowy rugs and quantities of white Drosdon—thinking how very celebrated and very picturesque he was. The day was foggy and cold. Pedestrians slipped on the pavements, lost their tempers and their way. Battalions of flithy torobbearers was an attal tempers and their way. "And if I don't?"

"I can write and explain one way or she was. Battalions of filthy torohbearers screamed husky offers of assistance. Comnibus horses tumbled down and refused tumultuously to get up. The cries of skaters came faintly from the ornamental water in St. James park.

And Mrs. Maine sat by her fire, very warm and snug, but very grave. She was considering a weighty matter.

"I wonder what I had better do?" she what I had better do?" she sheld in her hand. "I wonder what I really want to do?"

And she read the note again for the sixth time. It was very short and very plain spoken:

There have been philosophers who delared that the earth in which we stand and the stars on which we gaze have not comes of our inner selves. Perhaps the best answer to this is that the mind itself, at least that of most people, refuses to receive the idea. The difference between the me and the not me is took sharply defined in the inner consciousting root within us.

Yet we cannot afford to overlook the germ of truth which this idea contains. Though not literally the creation of our the hought, the outer world is to each one of us largely that which we have throw upon her. I was as yet within some miles of my goal when I overtook two pedestrians whose case was much worse than my own, for these two belated wanderers were women, and the poor creatures skirts were wet and draggled and clung miserably about their limbs. Both were slender and young, and the heavy rain beat heavily on their heads and shoulders. The girl who spoke (she could only have been in her early twenties) had a fair, ruddy complexion, her cheeks looked like roses that had had a thorough drenching, and a great lump of light brown hair, which showed beneath her soaked gray felt hat was heavy with diamond drops of water. Both girls wore neat ulsters, but the rain had evidently soaked them through, and they clung tightly to the slim outlines of their forms.

I glanced quickly at the girl addressed as Betty. She was wet, but even pretter than her companion. The steady tramp of my steps probably caused Betty some alarm, for she looked nervously 419 Main Street, WOBURN.

"What hotel are you bound for?" I inquired. "The Nuovi Bagni."

"Ah, I am going there too. Will you allow me to walk with you and to carry that bag?" I added, pointing to a fair sized rucksack strapped to the supple back of Miss Betty.

After a little demur the rucksack was nuclearly and attached to the lease.

After a little demur the rucksack was unstrapped and attached to the haversack I carried. I saw with satisfaction that the slender figure, relieved of its burden, drew itself more erect and moved forward with greater case.

The two girls, tramping unprotected along that lonely road which winds down from the summit of the pass to Italy, seemed quite free from any fear of danger. The discomfort of rain soaked elothing, boots heavy with mud, and the fatigue consequent on the long tramp seemed to be the only cause of complaint they had.

But I was very wet, very tired, very hungry, and I longed for my Capua down in the pleasant valley. My portmanteau had gone on by post—the carry all, omniscient post of foreign parts. At Bormio I would rest me for three whole days; good dinners would I cat and sparkling Asti would I drink, and I would make merry with any pleasant folk chance might throw in my way. Italian peasant girls do not attire temselves thus. I am a trifle short sighted, but in a very few moments I was aware that the early rising song-stress was Miss Kate Morison. A glance at the hotel register had informed me of the names of my fellow pedestrians. She looked very pretty and fresh. The mass of light brown hair was twisted up neatly at the back of her head. Clearly the luggage of the two girls had turned up, for there were no signs of travel stain about the trim blue serges skirt and the crisply starched pink blouse.

bely and wanished. After dinner she pleaded a headache and went to the room, and Betty looked troubled as she left us, but did not offer to follow.

I suggested a stroll in the convent garden, whence came the click of the bowls, for that old world game was always in full swing after the day's work was over. The garden, being large, served as an open air club to the townspeople. Betty agreed, and we were soon in the cool, high walled pleasance—a quiet spot, where all we heard of the players was the click of the ball and the distant sound of laughter and talk.

The sun had set, and a cool breeze was whispering among the broad leaves of the fig trees. In the grass the dron of the grasshopper made a sleepy mur mur. Betty was curiously slient, a tride unbarrased in manner, and someboth this unwonted shyness and tacturnity gave me confidence in myself. I take to the rabout many things, as if I were notified to her sympathy, told her of my strougles, of my ambitions, of my hopes—talked as a man rarely talks save the woman he loves and hopes to win for his wife.

I have been connected with the P. O. D. here since August 1, 1861, and if I could wield a racy pen I could show the many improvements made during these 34 years. Where would the present "rapid transit" come in if, for instance, we had to bill every letter and rate the postage on each piece now as we had to do before a mail could leave the office? Gee-whiz! but it makes me red hot when I think what those old fossils at Washington used to compel us to do. They have all crossed the Bar and the present men who run the department are abreast of the times. So mote it be.

The Whitney Opera Company, presenting "Rob Roy" at the Castle Square Theatre, begin the sixth week of their phenomenally successful engagement Monday night. It is not probable that "Rob Roy" will be sung upon the Castle Square Theatre stage longer than the prescribed time, therefore the people of Boston and New England had best take advantage of the performances which are being given with so much Scotch flavor at each successive performance of the black and red pland opera. Rehearsals have commenced at the Castle Square for the season of light and comic opera which will be given this summer at this beautiful theatre. It is expected that it will during the warm months be the Mecca for all theatre-goers, not only of Boston but of all New England, seeking to escape the sultry mights and find solace in the cooling temperature provided for them at the Castle Square. Manager Rose announces through the columns of this paper that he is desirous of bringing our some locations.

"The Fire Patrol" will follow "Fantasma" at the Bowdoin Square Theatre. This play is not new here but is always welcome to Boston theatre-goers as there is always bright and interesting situations and incidents in "The Fire Patrol" that keeps the attention of the audience from start to finish. The Hanlons in "Fantasma" are drawing large houses and no previous production seen here equals "Fantasma" as it is now being given. The stage equipments are wonderful and the scenery something elegant and well worth a long journey to see. This week closes the engagement and on Monday night "The Fire Patrol" will be given.

Miss Sadie Martinot will begin a brief engagement at the Park Theatre next Monday night during which she will appear in a new three-act comedy by B. C. Stevenson and William Yardley entitled "The Passport." Miss Martinot will be supported by a strong company of them well known favorites here. "The Passport." is well adapted to Miss Martinot and ample opportunities are given her to display to her many friends her abilities as an actress. The costumes, scenery and stage equipments have been selected with care and the coming attraction is considered one of the theatrical events of the season.

The man does not live, perhaps, who has the least idea of the name of the discoverer of the properties and ingredients of gunpowder, or who can tell within 500 or 1,000 years the date of its discovery. I have recently read both sides of the gunpowder controversy as it has appeared in a New York daily (where one writer argues that the discoverer was Roger Bacon, while the other declares that history supports the assertion that Michael Schwartz, a German monk, deserves the praise). It appears to me that the controversy in reference to Bacon versus Schwartz is of secondary importance, especially when it is known that it was in use hundreds of years before the birth of either.

A Quarrel by Cable.

The cable was once the medium for a lovers' quarrel, which took place between a lady in New York and a gentleman in France. The heroine was no other than that divine French artiste whose genius we all admire. The gentleman was a dramatic author, now no more. This curious quarrel took place one Sunday, the cable being joined through direct. It bristled with passionate reproaches, bitter, stinging sarcasms, couched in picturesque French. The scene was intensely dramatic. Both the actors, so near and yet so far, trembled with jealous passion as their bitter sarcasms were flashed through the coils of this gigantic sea serpent. Mutual complaints, reproaches and threats continued, until a last stinging sarcasm from France reduced the excitable artiste to a state of nervous excitement which culminated in hysterics. The cable was then restored to its normal condition.

A Dream and its Fulfilment.

A young man living in Florence dreamed that he had been bitten and mortally wounded by the marble lion which stood with open jaws in front of a certain church. Walking past the church with a few friends on the following day he told them of his dream and placed his hand in the lion's mouth, with the words, "Now bite me." At that very instant he felt a violent pain, for a scorpion that lay concealed in the lion's jaws had stung him so severely thing. NATIONAL SERIES, APRIL 28

Text of the Lesson, Mark xiv, 12-26-Men ory Verses, 22-24 — Golden Text, Luke xxii, 19—Commentary by the Rev. D. M.

12. As I have recently and and profited by a sermon by Rev. A. G. Brown of London upon a portion of this lesson entitled "Finding It as He Said," It is probable that some of the Spirit's suggestions to him may here be found. It is the last night before the crucifixion. The city Jerusalem, the holy city, is full of people, for only in the chosen city can the passover lambs be slain and the feast kept. Notice the disciples' question, "Where wilt Com?" Think of Sauly anestion, "What was Edwin Forrest. A few days before I was born my father declared he would name his child for him. 'What if it's a girl?' asked my mother. Then we'll call her Edwina, 'replied my father. So you see I was named beforehand. Another friend of his, my brother tells me, was Theodore Thomas, who used to black up and do 'nigger business.'

"And why not? Didn't Edwin Booth try it? It was a pity that my father did not live to make a great name as an actor in white, for he was considered a remarkable low comedian. In burlesque he used to sustain from one to half a dozen characters in a piece and exhibit on the morrow Christ, our passover, would be sacrificed for us." Have we, like the good man of this house, room for Josus? And are all our possessions at His disposal? Are we like the two disciples looking for His guidance? And do we recognize His hand in all the events of life? If so, it is well.

18. Before Jesus announced that one of them should betray Him it would seem from John xIII that He had washed their feet and had taught them thus to do for each other. Think of His washing the feet of Judas! How near one may be to Josus, how much He may do for one, how many privileges one may enjoy and yet be lost! It will surely be a fearful thing to have been numbered with the followers of Christ and yet not be truly His.

10. It was enough to make them sor lowers of Christ and yet not be truly His.

19. It was enough to make them sorrowful that one who had companied with them and had been apparently truly one of them should turn out to be only a traiter and hypocrite. So elever had the traiter been that it would seem that none of the others had suspected him, for no one said, "It must be Judas, just as we thought," but each said, "Is it I?" So kind had Jesus been that never by word or look or act had He even hinted that Judas was not sincere.

The Devil's House.

In Ladyard, a small town in Connecticut, is a house built prior to 1710 which bears the title of the "Devil's House." A curse is supposed to rest upon it, and in proof it is pointed out that in the present century more than 100 deaths have occurred in it, most of which were violent or more than ordinarily pathetic. The curse is supposed to have been pit upon the place by a girl named Green, who was ill treated there by a relative to secure her property.—Philadelphis Ledger. The Devil's House just as quickly and readily put his fingers into the fire as into the water. Darwin tells of a monkey with which he amused himself by encouraging the animal to initate certain actions of his own, the results of which he knew very well would be disastrous to the simian.

The naturalist lighted a candle, and in the presence of the monkey, snuffed it the presence of the monkey, snuffed it with his fingers. Leaving the candle burning, Darwin went away to a place whence he could watch the animal's actions without himself being observed. actions without himself being observed. The monkey of course snuffed the candle and burned his fingers, but could never be induced to repeat the experiment, and indeed, after that occasion, could with difficulty be persuaded to remain in the room with a lighted candle seeming to regard it as a sort of malevo seeming to regard it as a sort of malevo-lent fetich or demon that was called in-to existence for the special injury of monkeys. It is said by naturalists, how-ever, that not all monkeys have this ex-travagant fear of fire. In the forests of Africa monkeys have often been seen on cold, mornings warming, themselves at cold mornings warming themselves at the embers of fires left by travelers, and apparently greatly enjoying the genia apparently greatly enjoying the genial heat of the coals. Glad as they were to avail themselves of the warmth, how-ever, they had not sense snough to un-derstand that the fire could be kept up, and though material in the shape of dried branches and fallen wood was abundant in the immediate vicinity they made no effort to collect fuel and main-tain the fire.

All kinds of birds are attracted by fire All kinds of birds are attracted by fire and light. In Herndon's "Valley of the Amazon" there is a queer paragraph detailing the effect produced on the feathered inhabitants of those tropical forests by the campfires lighted every night by the party. Traveling as they did for a considerable part of the time through an unpublished investigation as a second considerable part of the time through an unpublished investigation. uninhabited jungle, it is quite possible that most of the birds had nev& before that most of the birds had nevae before seen the light of a fire, and as soon as the blaze began to shine through the leafy areades the birds, and particularly the parrots, dropped everything and came to look into the matter. They came in thousands, the trees in the vicinity were loaded down with them, and scores of throats poured forth opinions on the subject, all offhand and purely extem-poraneous, but none the loss vehible or subject, all offhand and purely extem-poraneous, but none the less voluble or loudly expressed. The uproar raised by the parrots was sometimes deafening. They came as close as they dared, form-ed a circle in the trees at a few feet dis-tant and shouted to one another about the matter until sleep for the party was out of the question. Shooting at them and killing a few of the number were tried, and with good effect, for the rest tried, and with good effect, for the rest scattered instantly, but only to return in ten minutes and renew the discr In ten minutes and renew the discussion as vociferously as ever. The party could not stay awake all night to shoot parrots, and so it became necessary after the meal was cooked to let the fire go down as low as possible and set sentinels to guard against the approach of wild beasts.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

To this, reply is made that, as a general rule, the intelligence of the "anointed of the Lord" is not above the average of that of ordinary mortals. Paradoxical though it may appear, brains are not needed in any superabundant quantity to direct the destinies of great and powerful nations, and ancient as well as modern history teaches that the most successful rulers have been persons of a mental caliber below rather than above the average, whereas those monarchs who were exceptionally gifted have invariably shown themselves unfitted to administer the destinies of the fitted to administer the destinies of the people subject to their control.

This may be explained by the fact that duliness usually goes band in hand with caution, which is a very desirable quality in a ruler, while genius is often both impulsive and impracticable.

Greeley's Double.

During the life of Horace Greeley During the life of Horace Greeley a man who resembled him—and nearly every town of any size had one such citizen—found his way impeded by the attentions thrust upon him, and which were intended for another man. He was a commonplace person who took no interest in the questions of the day, but possessed the famous facial resemblance which impressed strangers. Such a double of greatness had only to keep silence and look wise to be mistaken for his distinguished prototype.—Exchange.

Critical Logic l'alled.

The late Sherlock Holmes had a favorite dictum: "Eliminate the impossible, and what is left, however improbable, must be the truth." This was not at all in accordance with the saying of Victor Hugo: "Nothing is so imminent as the impossible. What must be always foreseen is the unforeseen." Most of us will agree, from experience, with Hugo rather than with Holmes. The impossible does happen. When "Mercy Philbrick's Choice" was published in the "No Namo" series, the critics were agreed that it seemed to be COMBINATION PATENT lished in the "No Name" series, the critics were agreed that it seemed to be written by Helen Hunt Jackson. But, as those who knew her love for flowers and acquaintance with nature also pointed out, she could not be the author, for there were several glaring mistakes in the naming and placing of blossoms in the story. Yet, as was afterward disclosed, she did write it. So all the theorizing went for nothing.—Philadelphia Press.

But when he felt his father's hand on his coat collar and received the weight of a hickory stick on his shoulders he wondered who was the April fool.

Fool confectionery is one of the modern attempts at a joke. Cake stuffed with cotton batting is baked with an in-viting exterior and sent to friends. Candies decay with results.

viting exterior and sent to friends. Candies dosed with red pepper, sugar mixed with salt, caramels made with liberal quantities of snuff and similar jokes are worked off on the unsuspicious.

Every kind of trick is resorted to by the grocer on that day to get even with the unprofitable customer who tastes from every box and barrel in the store. Salt is mixed with molasses to make it resemble brown sugar, raisins are sprinkled with kerosene, figs filled with red pepper and imitation crackers substituted for the genuine. Loaded eigars are left conspicuously handy, and chewing tobacco is generously doctored with quinine. These and a hundred other schemes of folly carry out the design of the day.—Detroit Free Press.

A VALENTINE.

What would I send you, O friend of mine? Clusters of blossoms To smile and shine.

Pansies to gladden, Roses to bless, Lilies to bend in Their frail loveliness.

But-snowdrifts have hidden All beauty away. Not a smile's in the country This winter day.

Everything's waiting
To smile by and by,
When summer's returning
With blue sunny sky.

The was well into November when I'd finished my run and started to come in, and the nights was gettin too sharp for sleepin out with any comfort. I planned to make Higgins Wells first night out, for there was an old stone cabin there, half built into the side hill, without much roof, to be sure, but further the state of the side of the state of the side of the si nishin some cover and givin a shelter so I didn't feel harried, though the days was gettin short.

"About sundown it grew raw right away, and then the mountains to the east and every little knob and butte stood out sharp, with a chilly dead light on 'em, like they was gettin purple with the cold. There wasn't a cloud nowhere to be seen, nor a breath of wind stirrin, and I knew it was goin to be a still, pinchin, frosty night, and I buttoned my coat up tight, and for the first time son the trip begun to hurry up my mule.

"While I was wonderin at all this, a light broke out of the cabin door and through the little window, like some one had just started a fire inside. Then next I see a complife flame up just through the "chinking" of the cabin and lay in miniature drifts upon the floor, the fine, dry crystals sparkling in the firelight. We were fairly warm and comfortable where we sat on our rolls of blankets, placed upon the rudely laid rough hearthstones, but ten feet back from the fire the air was bitterly raw and cold one had just started a fire inside. Then next I see a campfire flame up, just down the hill by the Wells, and men and animals movin about near by. I thought it was queer I hadn't seen 'em till just that minute, for the country was open all round, and up to now there hadn't been a sign of life anywhere.

"Then I says to myself, 'Most likely it's a prospectin party, and they was hid by the willows growin round the Wells,' but somehow this explanation didn't satisfy me, and I rode up toward the cabin, feelin glad at the prospect of

When the moon come up, it was some cheerfuller, but I felt glad enough when I seen the butte where the Wells and the stone cabin was and thought of a fire and blankets.

"When I'd got to within p'r'aps a quarter mile of the cabin, I see somethin I never seen before and couldn't no ways account for. It was like a long, wavy line of mist, comin from the east, movin through the air just above the ground and makin for the butte faster in a locomotive and straight's a bee flies!

"It didn't look like mist exactly neither, but more like a string of misty figures, with long, while streamers blowin out behind 'em on the wind! I scarcely had time to spec'late what it was, when just by the cabin it melted away and disappeared altogether. The air was clear and as dry as a bone, so I knew it couldn't be just a flyin vapor I'd seen, and besides there was nary

Not only them two designin old men and their circus outfit, but with 'em the three burros I'd just bought and paid for, my five ounce ball of bullion and actually the mule I'd come on. When the rest of the party blew off in that interestin way, he'd somehow got caught in the draft, I suppose, and had to go along too.

"Next mornin early I started out on foot, packin my blankets, for Old Woman's springs. There I hired a burro and went in to stay for the winter. Now you can see, sir," concluded Calkins, addressing the theosophist impressively, "I wan't far off when I said I'd met a couple of them gifted bein's you was talkin of, and that they didn't use me no ways square any way you look at it."

"I said you'd see the bearin's of it, as p'r'aps some wouldn't, you recollect," said Calkins, as, yawning, he arose with his blanket roll and turned to his bunk.

Mr. Hawthorne Was Satisfied. Mr. Hawthorne Was Satisfied.

Nathaniel Hawthorne was a kind hearted man as well as a great novelist. While he was consul at Liverpool a young Yankee walked into his office. The boy had left home to seek his fortune, but evidently had not found it yet, although he had crossed the sea in search. Homesick, friendless, nearly penniless, he wanted a passage home. The clerk said that Mr. Hawthorne could not be seen and intimated that The elerk said that Air. Hawthorne could not be seen and intinated that the boy was not an American, but was trying to steal a passage.

The boy stuck to his petut, and the clerk at last went to the little room and said to Mr. Hawthorne:

A War of Pamphlets.

The two leading features of the fa-mous sermon preached by Dr. Sacheve-rell in St. Paul's cathedral on Nov. 5, rell in St. Paul's cathedral on Nov. 5, 1709, which led to his trial and all the paper war which raged around his name, were the denunciation of religious tolerance and the upholding of the doctrine of nonresistance to the crown in its extremest form. The Sacheverell pamphlets consist of short and catchpenny lives of the reverend hero, several sermons preached by him at various ermons preached by him at various dates, attacks by dissenting writers on such sermons and their preacher, and other sermons and replies in support of

The list of Sacheverell pamphlets is a record of sermons, speeches, answers, letters, replies, thought, vindications and considerations, with endless variations of title, in long and wearisome procession. The total number of distinct and search publications conversed dis and separate publications connected di and separate publications connected di-rectly or indirectly with the controversy, enumerated by Mr. Falconer Madan in his "Bibliography of Sacheverell," amounts to no less than 226, and most of these are tracts, broadsides and pamphlets of the most ephemeral kind. Their enumeration is a triumph of bib-liographical industry and patience and liographical industry and patience and an astonishing proof of the strength and indeed violence of party feeling, both ecclesiastical and political, at the crisis of Queen Anne's reign.—Gentle-man's Magazine.

Surprised, but Equal to It.

The marshal in a western town had occasion to arrest four or five ugly citizens, and he called on Mr. William J. Smith, better known as Bill, to act as a posse comitatus. The offenders were found in a saloon, and Mr. Smith went in there with the sheriff very modestly. The sheriff hadn't more than stated his business when he pulled a pistol and the crowd broke for the back door. The sheriff fired and missed, and Mr. Smith tumbled the hindermost man, the others escaping. Then Mr. Smith looked at the sheriff with a look of pain. "H—l, Jim," he said, "why didn't you tell me you was goin to open the meetin with pra'r and I'd 'a' had a full house fer you?"—New York Sun.

From Syracuse (N. Y.) Herald.

The efficacy of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy was substantially proven—in the case of Mrs. C. S. Abell, of this city.

Mrs. Abell lives at No. 114 Roberts avenue, where she was seen by a reporter. She talked freely of her case, and said: "For a number of years I have been troubled with liver complaint and rheumatism, that made me almost helpless. I became so ill I could scarcely walk across the floor. One of our home physicians informed me that I had heart trouble, and began treating me for that. His treatment formed me that I had heart trouble, and began treating me for that. His treatment did no good. One day I read of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy which I purchased, and began taking, and improved greatly. I have now taken six bottles, and was never so well in my life. I can say nothing but kind words for Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, to which I owe so much. I know of another case in which Favorite Remedy restored to health a friend, who was thought incurable."

to a thoughtful and well-written paper upon "Socialism vs. Individualism" by Mrs. Ellen Battelle Dietrick.

These two ideals for a nation are diametrically opposed.

It is difficult to arrive at a true definition of these terms because the opinion of the definer necessarily colors the definition.

One, of the opinion that the State is the saviour of society, will say that Individualism is undue attachment to the interests of the individual. Aphilosophical Individualism is that just regard for the interests of individuals without which the noblest society canante exist.

To one opposed, Socialism or Nationalism means an undue attachment to the competition and the second deace in the power of government to be the benefactor of society. The results of Nationalism as outlined by Bellamy were carefully considered and found to be productive of evil to the individual. The difficulties of society are not due to competition as is claimed by Socialists. The Individualist asserts that there should be fuller and freer competition. The difficulties of society are not due to competition as is claimed by Socialists. The Individualist asserts that there should be fuller and freer competition. Girls should be trained to compet with men in the trades and professions. The Socialist says that women are physically unable to enter an equal race with men for self-support. Individualists contend this is a fallacy. If girls are educated to depend upon themselves, they need not marry for support. Marriage will mean the support of the success of society. Nationalism as planned by Bellamy would improve by means of government. Individualists contend this is a fallacy. If girls are educated to depend upon themselves, they need not marry for support. Marriage will men the trades and professions. The search of the mean of the support of

I sorely regret to be compelled to send to the JOURNAL and its many readers the sad news of the death of Mrs. Marshall Tidd of this village, which occurred on May 7. It is deeply regretted and will be for a long time to come.

Mrs. Tidd was one of the best women in this city. Everybody knew her, and to know her was to admire. She was a woman of strong character, and yet possessed a soft, warm heart. Her influence was potent in this community and always in the right direction. She did much to shape affairs and make North Woburn a model place for homes. Her charity extended to all. Plain in manner and speech, to all. Plain in manner and speech, endowed with uncommon practical sense, democratic to the core, all classes were included in her charities, and by were included in her charities, and by all classes will she be greatly missed. Mr. Marshall Tidd, who is left to mourn the loss of a faithful, loving wife, and all other relatives, have the deepest smpathy of the whole com-munity in their bereavement.

"It comes nearer to being reciprocity. Every few days some man gives my wife or mother a seat in a crowded car, so I or mother a seat in a crowded car, so I try to pass the courtesy on. Only yesterday I saw every man in a Gratiot avenue car give up his seat to some woman. Not one was thanked, or looked as if he expected to be, or indeed gave the woman in the case a chance to thank him. It was done as if all belonged to one family, but the true spirit thank him. It was done as if all belonged to one family, but the true spirit of politeness was in the atmosphere, and thanks, though not audible, were felt. To tell the truth, it embarrasses me to have a woman repeat that set formula, "Thank you, sir!"

A Mother's Lament.

It was in the Black sea that he fell from the bridge, and the captain said, "Is it Jack that is overboard?" For he loved him like a son, and he plunged in to save him. And the water was wild, and he grasped—but it was only his cap. And a sad present it was that they sent me that Christmus—his silver watch and chain. And since then I have been weak and weary, for he was the watch and chain. And since then I have been weak and weary, for he was the first of 13, and I loved him the best. Ah, Jesus sent and Jesus took! I know it must be so, but when I sit on the rocks I think maybe God took my son to some island in the sea, and when I see the birds skimming on the water I think maybe he was not drowned, but will come up out of the sea to his mother, who nursed him so dear.—Blackwood's Magazine.

"I heard a good barber story the other day," said a man in the hotel rotunda, "and for genuine sarcasm I believe it carries off the palm. It may be an old one at that, but if it is it's worth repeating. It appears that a certain barber was trying to describe a certain barber was trying to describe a certain man to a customer in his chair. He thought the customer ought to know him, as he had lived here a long time and had often sat on platforms at public meetings with other vice presidents.

"'He is a tall, thin man, with dark hair,' said the barber.

The Unselfish Cricketer.

The Unselfish Cricketer.

The cricket ground is a wholesome training field for young Englishmen. "It has cost me, one way or another, a fiver to play in this match. I have traveled 200 miles, and now I can say that I have played on a side which made 536 runs, and if I had staid away they would only have made 535."

So said a very good cricketer at the end of a two days' match, in the course of which he had received three balls only, but he said it without a semblance of grumbling in his voice. Being a cricketer, he had learned to lose sight of his personal failure in thinking of the success of his side, and we hope and believe that he felt that he would rather win a match wherein he made one run than score a century for a losing side.

Only on rare occasions do we meet a downright selfish cricketer, and then we instinctively feel that a man of his stamp would have done better had he

53. "And they led Jesus away to the high priest, and with him were assembled all the chief priests, and the elders, and the scribes." After the darkness and agony of the garden, being strengthened by an angel, He went forth to lay down His life of His own accord (John x, 18). The boastful disciples all forsook Him and fled (verses 31, 50). The young man of verses 51, 52 was probably Mark himself, as in other cases the unnamed one was doubtless the writer of the gospel (Lake xxiv, 18; John i, 40). Jesus, being bound (John xviii, 12), is led as a lamb to the slaughter (Isa, lii, 7, for those before whom He was brought had long before determined to kill Him (Math, xii, 24; John xi, 53).

In the case of Mary E. Campbell, of Albion, Noble Co., Ind., her suffering was so severe, her relief so suddenly realized, and her gratitude so great, that she wishes the circumstances published, in the hope that others may be benefited thereby. She says:—

"My physician told me I had dropsy and falling of the womb. My stomach and bowels were so bloated I could not get a full breath. My face and hands were bloated badly. I had that dreafful bearing-down pain, backache, palpitation of the heart, and nervousness.

"One of my physicians told me I had something growing in my stomach; and the medicine that I took gave me relief only for a short time. I thought I must die. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it worked like a charm. After taking the first bottle I could walk across the street, now I am well. I advise all my friends to take it."—Mary E. many worse things, as in the case of Peter. We must have no confidence in ourselves, but be strong in the Lord and let Him perfect His strength in our weakness (Phil. iii, 3; Eph. vi, 10; II Cor. xii, 9).

55. "And the chief priests and all the council sought for witness against Jesusto put Him to death, and found none." Their minds were fully made up, and God was going to let them have their way and accomplish what He foresaw would surely come to pass (Acts iv, 27, 28). They were now seeking some reason for their conduct, but could find none except in the wicked ness of their own hearts. Testimony in His favor they could have readily obtained in abundance, but against Him, none. See John xviii, 20; Heb. vii, 26; Math. iii, 17; xvii, 5.

John xviii, 20; Heb. vii, 26; Math. iii, 17; xvii, 5.

56. "For many bare false witness against Him, but their witness agreed not together." It had been written that it should be so. "False witnesses are risen up against me, and such as breathe out cruelty." "False witnesses did rise up. They laid to my charge things that I knew not." (Ps. xxvii, 12; xxxv, 11). So every true follower of Jesus may expect to suffer wrongfully for conscience toward God, may expect to suffer for well doing, and if under such circumstances we can take it patiently God is well pleased (I Pet. ii, 19, 20). As His followers we must walk as He walked (I John ii, 6).

57, 58, "And there arose certain and bare false witness against Him, saying, We heard Him say, I will destroy this temple that is made with hands, and within three days I will build another made without hands," Just what He did say, out of which they made this accusation, is found in John ii, 19, and if you compare His words with what they made Him say you may not feel so bad about some sayings of yours which have come back to you some what perverted. The fact is that we have no time to waste on feeling bad about slanders and false accusations. Such things will continue till the Lord comes, and when He permits them to come our way we must at once thank Him for the privilege of such fellowship (I Thess, v., 18; Phil.; 1,29), and referring the whole matter to Him just leave it with Him to be adjusted (Isa. liv. 17).

"Is it not a serious question whether our simplicity in the administration of a sacred onth does not defeat its very purpose? We in this free born American republic are justly proud of our simple, unostentatious ways, marked by want of useless ceremony, and we, by our example, daily administer rebuke to the old world of the vanity of its ways, but let us not carry this feeling too far. Human nature here, as elsewhere, is impressionable, and if an obligation is rendered more binding by impressiveness we should not hesitate to leave the content of the same than the same three of the same thing among men more.

"Gie Us a Lead."

Dean Hole, in his recent book, "More Memories," tells an amusing story of how an old woman got the better of her elergyman in an argument. The village churchyard was overcrowded, except on its sunless northernside, in which the suicide was buried. One day the vicar, while visiting a poor old woman who was nigh unto death, thought he would try to get her consent to be buried in the roomy northern plot.

try to get her consent to be buried in the roomy northern plot.

He began by assuring her that the common aversion to burial in any particular portion of consecrated ground was a stilly prejudice and a foolish superstition. Then he besought her, as a personal favor to himself and as an example to others, to permit her body to be buried in the northern plot of the churchyard. churchyard.

SWEARING IN RECRUITS.

How Simply It Is Done Here and How Impressively In Germany.

"The unostentatious manner in which our national affairs are administrated is well illustrated by the striking contrast between the ceremony of swearing in recruits in our army and the same ceremony in Germany," remarked an officer who is stationed at Fort Wayne. "Here the recruit, after expressing his desire to serve Uncle Sam, is ushered into the room, a bare, dingy, rented into the room, a bare, dingy,

So help me God. Signature to this oath makes him, with out more ado, a full fledged soldier.

"How different is the following ceremony used in binding Germany's soldiers to their kaiser: The young conscript is conducted to the church of the parish in which he enlists, where he is first addressed by the pastor on the sacred character and great import of the oath he is about to take; then, the flag of his country and that of his battalion being placed on the altar, the embryo soldier is required to place his left hand on these flags, and raising his right to repeat the following oath: 'I swear before God, who is all powerful, and who knows all, that I will serve loyally and faithfully my very gracious sovereign ander all circumstances. His stock of provisions was exhausted, and he lacked money with which to procure a new sup-ply; also he could no longer obtain pow-der, fuse and other supplies on credit. It became evident that he must have money or he would be obliged to stock CALL AND SEE IT.

NICHOLS & BROOKS,
Embalmers & Funeral Directors,

It became evident that he must have money, or he would be obliged to stop work on the bowlder.

In this strait he went up into the town of Downieville and explained the situation to a number of friends. All knew Mike's claim, and all had faith in it, for the old channel with the big rock in its mouth had been the talk of all the Sing canyon miners long before.

in its mouth had been the talk of all the Slug canyon miners long before Mike set his stakes there. Therefore he found it a less difficult business than he had anticipated to raise money with which to proceed. Half a dozen friends became his backers, telling him to go ahead and call upon them as often as he needed money. They would take the chances of his finding enough gold to make them all right once the big bowl-der had been conquered.

make them all right once the big bowlder had been conquered.

Again Mike set to work in high spirits. He told his backers that in two or three months more he would have utterly demolished the big rock, but when that time had passed the work seemed only fairly begun. After Mike had been at work for about a year and a half the men who were "mutting no" for him men who were "putting up" for him began to grow tired of the whole busi-

In order to cheer them up Mike would say: "Byes, I do be knockin the ould rock to smithereens! I've got her so wakened now that she shakes wid ivery

Finally the men tired of hearing this story when Mike came round to collect money, and he then began to say, "One more blasht, byes, and I've got her!"

This went on so long that it became a byword in Downieville. Everywhere it was, "One more blasht, byes, and I've got her!" Mike's backers laughed with the others and put up the money he asked for.

All things bays an end however, and

All things have an end, however, and All things have an end, however, and when Mike's "lasht blasht" shattered the huge slab, constituting the sole remnant of the once enormous bowlder, he went to the base of the mass and began working under it with his pick. On a sudden the big block began to topple over. Mike dropped his pick and retreated with the rock following him on a steen down wards. The significant a steep down grade. ed to death Mike was obliged to leap into the canyon.

Owing to a spring freshet, the canyon was at the time a roaring torrent. Therefore his leap was almost as that proverblal one from the frying pan. He was swept down the canyon about 200 yards till almost at the verge of a vertical fall of some 30 feet, when he had the weed moment.

"Mike Maroney has gone crazy about his big bowlder!" cried the miners on seeing him running bareheaded down the canyon trail. At some of the claims be passed men threw down their tools, and scrambling up the bank of the stream to the trail called out after him, but the only answer they received was but the only answer they received was, "That lasht blasht fetched her!"

"That lasht blasht fetched her!"
When Mike reached Downieville and started up the middle of the town, hatless, dripping wet, shouting and carrying before him his golden prize, he soon had a crowd at his heels. He paid no attention to the crowd, but when he saw on either side of the street miners of his acquaintance he shouted to them in passing: "Byes, that lasht blasht fetched her! There's a whole bushel of goold undther the bottom of her!" goold undther the bottom of her!"

goold undther the bottom of her!"

Strangers in the town thought they saw before them a crazy man, but every resident of the place knew Mike, and soon along the street was raised the cry: "Mike Maroney has struck it at last! He's knocked the devil out of his bowlder and got a chunk of gold bigger'n a fryin pan!"

Mike told his friends that, though he had only stopped long enough to catch up the first big nugget he saw, he was sure there was a whole bushel of gold in the nest of the big bowlder. With the sample brought in by Mike lying before them all were ready to believe that he had made the "strike" of the age. Every man who heard of Mike's find said he always felt sure that there were "mule loads" of gold under the big bowlder of Slug canyon.

As soon as Mike's backers had collected their wits, scattered by the sight of the big nugget and his wild story of the big nugget and his wild story of the bowlders of gold in sight, they dropped warry of "Mine, in the name of the as he appeared mounted upon his big Seen thus he might well have passed for the king of the gnomes, just popped up from the chambers of his golden caverns for a mouthful of sunshine and a peep at the upper world.

Seeing the miners thus flocking after him, Mike cried: "Cheer for me, byes. The lasht blasht fetched her!" The lash blash fetched her?

During the absence of the party the excitement in the town was at fever heat. Some new wonder was constantly being added to the story of the big find. Then occasionally there were false.

bowler and got a chunk of gold bigger'n a fryin pan!"

Mike was a small man as to height, standing less than 5 feet in his boots, but he was immensely broad across the shoulders, and in strength was a little Samson. Altogether he was a curiously constructed creature. He had a head big enough for a six footer. His mouth seemed the result of a slash of a cleaver, and was of the result of a slash of a cleaver, and was of the result of a slash of a cleaver, and show or it with one corner drawn up toward his left ear in a very knowing way. As soon as Mike's backers had collected their wits, scattered by the sight of the big nugget and his wild story of bushels of gold in sight, they dropped everything and prepared to go at once to the scene of the strike. With the clated Maroney in the lead they set out, taking with them a reak pulse that here. Blessed Virgin." Seeing that the life he was leading was making him worse, his friends on the canyon tried to get him out of his cabin, offering him big wages to work in their claims. All was useless, however, until one day a man happened to say he had a big bowlder in his diggings he wanted blasted out. Instantly Mike pricked up his ears and was all treaters.

Being given a trial, it was found that he was able to work as well and intelligently as ever at drilling and blasting.
While engaged in that work he seemed quite sane, but he could not be induced to do anything in the mines except blast

to have a refect wants and could acbowlders. For that business he seemed to have a perfect mania and could ac-complish nearly as much in a day as two ordinary men. Battling with the bowlders was seen to brighten him up wonderfully, and he was given all the work he could do in his favorite line by the friendly miners up and down Slug canyon.

One day after Mike had been for some months waging a war of extermination against the bowlders of Slug canyon his friends up in Downieville had a big surprise. All unheralded and unexpected, the "Widdy Maroney," with a raft of tall and buxom daughters, landed in their midst, fresh from the "ould sod." They had come to make their home in America "and look afther poor Moik." Marriageable girls being at that time in great demand, the family were heartily welcomed and well provided for at once. It was then so contrived that Mike was suddenly brought into the midst of the whole crowd without a hint being given him beforehand that his mother and sisters were in the country. The surprise so shook him up mentally One day after Mike had been for son Suffered from Heart Trouble, Liver Complaint and Rheumatism, and was cured. From Syracuse (N. Y.) Herald.

The efficacy of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy was substantially proven—in the case of Mrs. C. S. Abell, of this city.

Mrs. Abell lives at No. 114 Roberts avenue, where she was seen by a reporter. She talked freely of her case, and said: "For a number of years I have been troubled with liver complaint and rheumatism, that made me almost helpless. If became so ill I could scarcely walk across the floor. One of our home physicians informed me that I had heart trouble, and began treating me for that. His treatment did no good. One day I read of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy which I purchased, and began taking, and improved greatly. I have now taken six bottles, and was never so well in my life. I can say nothing but kind words for Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, to which I owe so much. I know of another case in which Favorite Remedy restored to health a friend, who was thought incurable."

Mrs. Abell also said she would be glad to describe her case to any sufferer. The family are quite as protuse in their praise of Favorite Remedy as Mrs. Abell herselt. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is a never falling specific in diseases of the skin and blood. It restores the disordered liver to a healthy condition and corrects constipation. It is a certain cure for the diseases per favorite Remedy as the worn out feeling. In cases of rheumatism, dyspepsia, Bright's disease, gravel, diabetes and bladder troubles, it has cured where all clee failed. MISS BANCROFT.

Obituary.

Died at North Woburn, May 7, Sarah B., the wife of Marshall Tidd, aged 72 years, 9 months, 24 days.

Mrs. Tidd was born in Claremont, N. H., July 13, 1822, and nearly forty-nine years ago came to Woburn, the young and happy bride of Mr. Tidd. Here she has made anever here home which he has made anever here home which he has made anever here home which he has made anever here home whose here has been here home which he has made anever here home who was ever a welcome guest wherever she went and everyone felt sure of a welcome in calling upon her.

There are still living many who easily recall how untiring was her zeal during the war both to propare and to procure articles for the comfort of our soldiers, an incredible amount of which she was the means of forwarding to the fields of battle. She was also largely instrumental in organizing, for benevolent purposes, Sewing Societies, over two of which she presided. Indeed her plans and acts of kindness seemed to embrace everybody. But her interest was seen especially in the case of suffering and afflicted families in the village. It is received to sorrow might come, Mrs. Tidd would not forget them. The unusually large and tearful assembly at her funeral afforded ample proof of tenderly grateful remembrances of an appreciated friend. The funeral addresses by Rev. Messrs. Parker, Thompson and Winn all gave tender expression to an emphatic recognition of the same cheerful and unfailing trait in the character of the departed one. Rarely has any one been called away from North Woburn who was more gratefully remembered or sadly missed by those who remained, than will be Mrs. Tidd. May God sustin and cheer the afflicted one in that stricken home whose loss can never be expressed by words.—T.

The arrangements for the proper observance of Decoration Day are in the hands of the three highest officers of Woburn Post, 161, G. A. R., and are, so we hear, about completed.

Escort duty will be performed by the Woburn Mechanic Phalanx (Co. G. M. V. M.), Charles Bowers Winn Camp of Sons of Veterans, Capt. E. H. Lounsbury in command, and the W. H. S. Battalion, and there will be regulation exercises.

A full programme will be given next week.

Dr. William A. Alcott says: "I have seen led to the conclusion by more than forty years of close observation that a distribution of the heart and sudden death therefrom is the one supreme evil resulting from the use of coffee."

Boston Theatres. THE BOSTON.

"Trilby" was presented at the Boston Theatre last Monday night by A. M. Palmer's Company and the large audience present was an indication that the present engagement will be even more successful than the one at the Park Theatre a few weeks ago. Mr. Palmer has taken the utmost care in his selection of a company of players, each one of whom he believes to be especially qualified to portray the various characters in Du Maurier's novel.

"Boccascio" was given last Monday evening and the large audience present were more than pleased at the way in which the opera was presented. The Castle Square is admirably sunted for summer entertainments. No theatre in Boston is better ventilated or more admirably arranged for comfort of patrons. The costumes and scenery are entirely new and the presentations are the finest seen here. For next week "Dorothy" will be given. A new opera each week.

THE BOWDOIN SQUARE. On Monday evening, May 20, Mr. Charles Barron and Elita Proctor Otis will be at the Bowdoin Square Theatre in "Oliver Twist." Mr. Barron and Miss Otis are so well and favorably known here that comments are unnecessary. The company in their support will be equal to the occasion and the coming presentation of "Oliver Twist" will be looked forward to with pleasure by their many friends. "Special Delivery" has proved a drawing card and will be seen the balance of the week.

The managers of the Grand Opera House announce for next week's attraction "The Two Mme. Janeuschek in leading roles. "The Two Orphans" as presented by these two artists will be a rare treat and everything has been done to make the coming production one of the events of the season. Richard Golden, in "Old Jed Prouty," will be seen for the balance of this week. This is his last appearance for a long time in "Old Jed Prouty."

The entertainment at Keith's was never better than this week and the engagement of Webber & Fields the kings of German comedy. Russell Bros. in "The Irish servant girls." Wood & Sheppard, monarchs of musical comedy. Dilion Bros., parody singers. Mardo, the clown juggler. The 3 Marvelles, acrobatic grotesques. Arthur Rigby, black face comedian. Glass Bros. the famous gladiatorial acrobats. Charles Diamond in famous harp songs and dances. Evans and Vidocq, a pair of eccentric comedians. The comedy trio and several more leaders on the vaude-ville stage.

Austin's palace theatre.

Another splendid bill of extravaganza and specialty will be the attraction at the Palace Theatre next week, and the patrons of the house may look forward to an entertainment bristing with strong and novel features. The management of the Palace proposes to give during the summer months this kind of amusement, and no expense will be spared to make the theatre a delightful retreat during the warm days. The theatre will always be found cool and comfortable, while only the best available talent will be engaged.

Wilmington.

"Toots Ames," a pure blooded Blue Skye Terrier, died at his home in this village on Wednesday, May 8, of paralysis. He would have been 10 years old had his life been spared one day longer, having been born on May 9, 1885. He came to live with Mr. J. A. and Mrs. Harriot G. Ames when a puppy of only 6 months, and has been a dear pet of the family ever since. On last Monday, May 13, at 3 o'clock, p. m., "Toots Ames" was buried, with unusual ceremony for a country place, in the Ames burying lot in the Wilmington cemetery in accordance with the wishes of his late owner, who died several years ago, and consonant with the feelings of Mrs. Harriot G. Ames, relict of the same, and mistress of the favorite little animal. Official undertakers conducted the burial. A heat perfectly white little casket was furnished by them to receive the him. Besides these tokens of affection there were many floral offerings, among them 10 carnation pinks, emblematic of the 10 years of his happy existence; roses, lilles, and a very beautiful floral dog collar made by Mr. Hovey, the celebrated Woburn florist. Many people were present at the burial of "Toots Ames," by some of whom it was deemed a singular proceeding, outre, not just the thing; but the ceremonious burial of favorite dogs, and monuments to their memory, are not sufficiently uncommon as to warrant such feelings. Mount Aduburn, Forest Hills, and other noted them as inflicient blood supply to keep them so the armoles of the menory, are not sufficiently uncommon as to warrant such feelings. Mount Aduburn, Forest Hills, and other noted the many formed and been remore a conducted commencial stones to pet cannies, and it was entirely proper that Mrs. Ames and it was entirely proper that Mrs. Ames and it was entirely proper that Mrs. Ames Wilmington.

memory, are not sufficiently uncommon as to warrant such feelings. Mount Auburn, Forest Hills, and other noted cemeteries near Boston contain numerous memorial stones to pet canines, and it was entirely proper that Mrs. Ames and her son Mr. Joseph N. Ames should establish a precedent for our good, if rural, town of Wilmington. "Toots Ames" was greatly beloved by these people; he had been an innate of the family many years; and what more proper than that his burial should be accompanied with some ceremonial and love tokens?

On Thursday afternoon, May 9, Mr. Horace Sheldon, a prominent citizen of this town, was discovered sitting in a chair in the tear of his cattle in the barn dear throught he had died some four hours present a covered all that time. Mr. Saned only is about 70 years old. He was one of three sons and of the six children of the late Asa G. Sheldon of this town, a famous bridge and railroad contractor who built a portion of the Boston & Lowell Railroad away back in 1834 and 1835, cut down Pemberton Hill and made the land for Causeway, Lowell and other streets in Boston, assisted by his sons, among whom was Horace, the deceased. Mr. Horace Sheldon was an active business man and an excellent citizen. He was thought highly of by his neighbors and a wide circle of acquaintances outside the limits of our town. He was a just and upright man. The funeral, held on Sunday, was numerously attended by home people and many from abroad, by all of whom tokens of respect were paid to his memory.

well and roam around the village. Such was their fear that not one would venture forth after dark for fear of meeting it. Following their usual custom, they had sought to propitiate it with offerings of food, fruit and rice, and they maintained that when this was neglected that some article or another would disappear from their gardens in revenge, sometimes their pumpkin vines being stripped and growing plants utterly destroyed. Smith had heard of this state of affairs and had endeavored to get to the bottom of it, and as the offerings of food were nightly made by the people and as regularly removed during the night he naturally thought that there was some human agency at work. Accordingly, one night he hid in the banyan tree and hid myself in its suddenly stopped, and in the dead as regularly removed during the night he naturally thought that there was some human agency at work. Accordingly, one night he hid in the banyan tree whose dense foliage afforded him perfect cover, and he declared that before he had been there long he had seen a form arise from out of the well, who was it? The sound at such and hour and under such conditions startled how rearound for awhile and then disappear within it, when he fired at it with his revolver. He had examined the well, but beyond its being of considerable depth there was nothing peculiar about it. The waterrose to within in a few feet of the ground and the villagers was extreme, for to see it was death. One man rushed into his hut, saying he had met it face to face. The next night he was discovered in his bed dead, with a thin blue line round his neck, the starting eyes and protruding tongue indicating that he had been strangled. A child one day ran to its mother, saying that it had seen the spirit at the well. The next evening the poor little body was found mudered like the other. Several similar incidents satisfied the people that it was the old priest demanding vengeance on his murderer, and they believed that any one interfering would surely die.

From what I heard I made up my mind that some rogue was at work, and connected the murders and robberies in the district with this so called spirit in the district with this so called spiri and was determined to capture it. Accordingly I resolved to see it for myself first of all, and fearing to alarm any one with my actions I announced that I was going to ride over te a neighboring Pinkham's treatment, especially her Vegetable Compound, effects cure be yound the physician's skill?

1. "And straightway in the morning the chief priests held a consultation." The devil's servants are very quick and very persevering—they put the Lord's servants to shame. The disciples could not watch one hour, but these servants of satan watched all might in their hatred of Him who loved them. Then in the morning the consummated their wickedness. There is a morning coming, however, when the take will be turned. See Ps. 2dls, 1; [5s. 4].

2. "And Plaite asked Him, Art thou the king of the Jews? And He, answering, said unto him, Thou sayest it." The wise men from the cast bare witness that He was the man ever suffered a single winto many three services and the same very early in His ministry (John i, 40), and the same very early in His ministry (John i, 40), and have a server and the same very early in His ministry (John i, 40), and the same very early 1. entertainment being given only on alternate nights. He was complaining laughingly of overwork when his brother (a barrister, as Mr. Corney Grain used to be), said across the table: "You oughth't to complain, my dear fellow. Work evidently doesn't hurt you. You look as though you wouldn't know how to die." I had a little talk with him after dinner. He told me that he nearly always composed overything for himself, and many of the things which had made the greatest "hits" had first been thought out during railway journeys.
"I got in the habit of thinking that what I wrote when I was traveling would turn out well and used to think it lucky to work then."

of his expectations, however, was the result. The wind grew stronger and stronger, culminating soon in a ra-and blinding snowstorm. The road roundings vanished. Vladimir's efforts to keep the right track were fruitless. The horses went on at haphazard, now ascending a snowdrift and now falling and upsetting the sleigh in a ravine. An hour, two hours passed, but not the slightest sign of Dshadrino.

At last it cecurred to him that he was traveling the wrong way. He stopped, reflected a moment and turned to the right. He consulted his watch. It was past 2 in the morning. Oh, horror! But toward Dshadrino he went, in spite of the boundless snowfield and the imnumerable snowdrifts and ravines that lay hat his master's fewer ally search, took up the reims, and in five minutes they were beyond the limits of Gavrillo (favrillovitich' sestate.

While Tereshka is taking care of Masha we shall turn our attention to our gall ant officer. Vladimir's driver, he knew well how to keep a secret, even when drunk all day. In the morning he visited the Dshadrino mimister, who, after considerable difficulty and upon receiving a handsome deposit consented to mary him. Then he set out in search of the more so when solven the mere words. She merely ascribed them to the fact of Masha being in love with venture, he assured him, recalled to him past associations and his own adventure, he assured him, recalled to him past associations and his own adventure, he insisted upon Vladimir's staying for dinner, assuring him that there would be no difficulty in finding two more witnesses.

The minister and the witnesses were alike reticent about the matter (they had as to Tereshka, Vladimir's driver, he knew well all dozen consulted to more so when sober. Thus the secret was kept sacred by over half a dozen called the more so when sober. Thus the secret was kept sacred by over half a dozen called the minute of the more so when sober. Thus the secret was kept sacred by over half a dozen called the more so when sobers of the more so when sobers of the more so when sobers of the special of the words. She merely ascribed them to the conversation to the first few words Masha ut the conversation short, thus affecting that the was but one side, then to the other. These symptoms, however, are only of short duration. While they slat the more so when sobers of in white, and with a book in branch that the proposal of marriage might take place.

Brunin found Masha by the pond undersative, and the special of the words. She may, but a few inches away, awaits the solution. As to one side, And so it happened that no sooner was dinner over than two local proprietors were announced. Both were in favor of conclusion that such was Masha's lot; that the inevitable must happen; that poverty is no crime; that it is not riches that make the man, but vice versa, and so forth. When our conscience is pricked and we find no justification for our des-pendent deeds, we generally adjust to high the marriage as well as of the means of effecting it, and of course were ready at a moment's notice to offer their services, and, should circumstances require it, to sacrifice their lives for the noble by moral texts, which upon other occa it, to sacrifice their lives for the noble cause. Vladimir was overjoyed. He em-braced his friends, and after bidding them an affectionate goodby hurried off to make the necessary preparations. The day drew to its close. Night set in. Free Pills.

Send your address to H. E. Bucklen & Co., Chicago, and get a free sample box of Dr. King's New Life Pills. A trial will convince you of their merits. These pills are easy in action and are particularly effective in the cure of Constipation and Sick Headache. For Malaria and Liver troubles they have been proved invaluable. They are guaranteed to be perfectly free from every deleterious substance and to be purely vegetable. They do not weaken by their action, but by giving tone to stomach and bowels greatly invigorate the system. Regular size 25c. per box. Sold by Gordon Parker, Druggist.

Weak, nervous, delicate, overworked women need a strength builder, a tonic for their nerves, and a cure for that awful internal trouble that is wearing out their lives. Thousands of women have found such in Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. Mrs. Christiana Beal, of Jonesport, Me., which is the sufferer from female trouble, and after reapeated trials, of doctor's prescriptions and other so-called cures, all of which gave no frelief, she used Favorite Remedy and it permanently cured her.

If you have headache, uterine catarrh, irregular menstruation, leucorrhea or irregular monthly periods, sickness incidental to change of life, or any of the attending evils that are present in female complaints, use Favorite Remedy; it will build up quickly the run down constitution, dispel those tired looks and feelings, restore the nervous system and permanently cure you.

Our daughters grow up weak and delicate; mothers can avoid such conditions by giving them Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy.

HE VETOED IT.

On last Wednesday, after patiently is the cheapest. the measure for a Police Commission for Woburn and thus not only strength-ened his reputation for the possession of sound sense, and demonstrated anew bis eminent fitness for the high position he fills so well, but showed his loyalty to the fundamental principles of a republican form of government—a government, as the great Lincoln concisely put it, "of the people, by the people, and for the people."

and for the people."

After the Governor's veto of the Holyoke bill which, like ours, was the offspring of bright brains and bad hearts, noting carefully his reasons for such action, the opponents of the Wo-burn bill, whose ranks included a large majority of the voters of our city, the majority of the voters of our city, the leaders being gentlemen of the highest respectability, embracing a major share of the local Republican party, took heart and felt hopeful of a similar fate for the home scheme. There were ample grounds to base such a hopeman, for the reasons given by the upon, for the reasons given by the Governor were as applicable to our case as to Holyoke, and besides that, his arguments were absolutely unassailable. He took a broad statesmanlike view of the situation and instead of yielding to the specious reasons of a faction, or heeding the utterly false cry, "this is a Republican measure and cry, "this is a Republican measure and you must endorse it." he took up the question, considered it from a higher standpoint than mere ward politics and small party policy, and decided in favor of popular self-government and home rule. For that honest and courageous action Gov. Greenhalge deserves and will be accorded the confidence and will be accorded the confidence and respect of every Republican who is such from conviction and principle is his party. The Holyoke and Woburn cases were in themselves petty and of insufficient importance to be made so much of, but their success would have been violative of the principles on which our government rests—sovereignty of the people—and it was for-tunate that a man was in the guberna-State, torial chair who respects those princi-ples and has the courage and ability to on it.

In the Holyoke case the Governor gave these reasons for his veto and in them is enumerated a political doctrine that has a true American ring: "Every citizen may claim the right of trial by a jury of the vicinage, and, while the guardians of the public peace are agents of the Commonwealth, it has always been deemed best, except in knowing their qualifications, and that those who have the best means of observing the manner in which officials discharge their duty, should have the power of appointments and removal. power of appointment of the Board of Police, as contemplated in the proposed Act, should be given to the Governor. In his veto of the Woburn bill Gov. Greenhalge speaks well and truly of our little city. We deserve his com pliments, for these is not a municipality in the State better governed, so far as the Police Department is concerned, than ours.

Regresentatives: I return without my approval the Act entitled: "An Act to establish a Board of Police for the city of Woburn," assigning for such action the following reasons:

The City of Woburn has a population of less than 15,000, with a police force of not more than 10 regular officers, and with 13 liquor licenses. There is no evidence that the laws are not fairly well enforced or that the laws are not fairly well enforced or that the laws are not fairly well enforced or that the laws are not fairly well enforced or that the laws are not fairly well enforced or that the laws are not fairly well enforced or that the laws are not fairly well enforced or that the laws are not fairly well enforced or that the laws are not fairly well enforced or that the laws are not fairly well enforced or that the laws are not fairly well enforced or that the laws are not fairly well enforced or that the laws are not fairly well enforced. Brussels Carpets.

Our Spring stock is particularly strong in Brussels, of self-colored designs, or two or three tones of colorings, with border to match. The same may be said of our assortment of Willons, for that matter.

Our line of these goods is unquestionably larger than that of any other Boston or New England dealer — very likely on a par with any house in New York, even.

We have for years made a specialty of exclusive styles, which are owned by us, and cannot be obtained elsewhere.

The present tariff (which only went into full effect Jan. 1) has combined with other causes to greatly lower the prices of all carpets, whether foreign or domestic.

lake in the pine woods, where quite an industry has sprung up within late years. On an average a boat a day arrives at the head of the canal. Here the charcoal is transferred to wagons and peddled about New Orleans.

The charcoal burners lead a very rough life. As a usual thing, they have camps and are stationed away out in the woods, their charcoal offtimes being hauled several miles to the iake. The man to whom the reacter was talking said that there were at some seasons of the year as many as 200 men engaged in the work.

"The life of the charcoal burner is a very pleasant one, for then the fires which burn all night furnish a cheery spectacle. Every night in the winter, when the heaps have all been finished and the burning begins, the men gather about the fires and cook their suppers. "I was determined to see as much of the country as possible, however, so at the next place I again hired a native to row me ashore. I took an umbrella this time and was weak enough to use it as a shield from the rays of the tropical sun. Arriving on shore, I walked lei-surely as far as the postoffice and back to the boat. Then I sat down on the to the boat. Then I sat down on the small pier, smoked cigarettes and watched the lazy motions of the natives rowing barges piled with bags of coffee out to the ship and the empty boats back to the shore again. ory Verses, 25-27—Golden Text, Rom. v, 8—Commentary by the Rev. D. M.

Stearrs.

22. "And they bring Him unto the place Golgotha, which is, being interpreted, The place of a skull." After Pilate scourged Him and delivered Him to their cruel pleasure the soldiers crowned Him with thorns, smote Him and did spit on Him, mockingly bowed their knees to Him and finally led Him out to crucify Him. Think on these things until you see Him bearing all that for you and your whole heart cries out, "I am Thine, O. Lord!" Then cheerfully, not by compulsion, like Simon the Cyrenian, bear the cross after Him (verses 16-21). Happy Simon! Blessed burden! But where was Simon Peter?

23. "And they gave to drink wine min."

was Simon Peter?

23. "And they gave to drink wine mingled with myrrh, but He received it not."

On the way to Calvary He spoke to the weeping ones of the coming days of sorrow because of this national rejection of Him.
To reject Christ brings unutterable misery.
Matthew, Mark and John call the place of weathers, Golwich L Luke show call the because of this national rejection of Him. To reject Christ brings unutterable misery. Matthew, Mark and John call the place of crucilyino Golgotha. Luke alone calls it Calvary. In Rev. xi, 8, it is spoken of as a part of the great city where our Lord was crucified. See in the wine and myrrh (compare Math. xxvii, 3t) a fulfillment of Ps. lxix, 2l. But He would not accept it.

24. See in this verse a literal fulfillment of Ps. xix, 1s, for every detail of His humiliation and sufferings was accurately foretold and fulfilled to the letter. So shall it be also with every detail of the predictions concerning His coming again, As He would not be stupefied by the drink offered to Him, may we not shrink from suffering with Him this little while.

25. "And it was the third hour, and they crucified Him." About 9 a. m. He endured the agony of having both hands and feet pierced with the cruci nails (Ps. xxii, 19). He was the fulfillment of all the sacrifices that had ever been offered at that morning fiour. Naked that he might be clothed; a king, yet not a thread of the trappings of earth's glory; all for us.

26. Over the cross by Pilate's orders there was written in Hebrew and Greek and Latin (the three languages which represented all the world, "Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews," and Pilate would not alter it, though the chief priests asked him to (John xix, 19-22), It was a title which was, and will yet be manifest to be, of interest to all the world. Are you interested now on the line of Isa. Ixii, 6, 7? See R. V.

27. Two evildoers were crucified with Him and He in the midst (John xix, 18). He could not choose His company any more than Joseph could in the prison, but He could glorify God even under such cironmestances, and He did. Even these were such as He would choose to save, and for just such He was then dying. It is a faithful saying that He came into the world to save sinners (I Tim. 1, 15).

saying that he came into the world to save sinners (I lim. i, 15).

28. Long years before it was written co-cerning Him, "And He was numbered with the transgressors" (Isa. lili, 12), and here was part of the fulfillment. In His life-time, while going about doing good, He was told that he had a devil and that He was a guitten and winshibber (Lub, with

"Of the many comic papers Punch is decidedly the only one that appears to excite a vague, mysterious interest in the bosom of the reading public. What is the cause, Mr. Burnand?"

"Probably the hebdomadal dinner, at which it is supposed, no dowbt, that the jokes are handed round to be digested."

"When was started in 1841 a year."

"Punch was started in 1841, a year of three eventful P's—the introduction of penny postage and the birth of the prince. It was to be a comic chronicle of the times."

"And its first editors?"

"Were Mark Lemon, Shirley Brooks and Tom Taylor."

In their identical chair now sits Mr. Burnand, who no doubt, through his other works, is better known to the general public than his predecessors. Francis Cowley Burnand was born on Nov. 20, 1836. His very earliest years showed a promise of literary talent. At Eton his little plays were acted in his tutor's room, and at the age of 14 his "Guy Fawkes" Day" was produced at Worthing. He carried his energies on to Cambridge, where he founded the A. D. C., which still flourishes.

Mr. Burnand quite made up his mind that the church should be his profession. And from reading at Cuddesdon he passed to St. Charles' seminary to study under the late Cardinal (then Dr.) Manning, which resulted in his discovering that the away of scalls was not his year.

ning, which resulted in his discovering that the cure of souls was not his vocation. His earliest contribution to Punch dates back to 1855, when he sent in a drawing which was reproduced by the great John Leech. Though the stage has always possessed a great attraction for him, journalism equally claims him as one of its successful lights. With what one of its successful lights. With what other papers was he connected? He once edited a small paper, The Glowworm, when Arthur A. Beekett was his 'sub.' He contributed a good deal to Fun. In fact, it was through Fun not seeing his idea of a literary joke that brought him directly in connection with Punch.

President Hayes' Watches

The late President Hayes watches.

The late President Hayes was always noted for his thrifty habits, but some things which impressed the multitude as signs of meanness were really nothing but ordinary prudence. For example, we all used to wonder why he would we all used to wonder why he would persist in wearing a silver plated watch, worth possibly $3. He was aware that this practice was known, and any aston-ishment manifested amused him instead of making him angry. In answer to a look of surprise he would say, "I think that is a plain watch for a president of the United States to carry, but it is good American make," as if assuming that this act would counteract the effect good American make, as it assuming that this act would counteract the effect of the cheapness of the article. The truth was that almost weekly a deputation of western Indians called upon him, always bringing presents of some kind to the great father. Of course, he was expected to give something in return, and the object was to find something cheap and at the same time acceptable. Watches were a novelty to the Indians, and to present a chief with a watch which the great father himself had been carrying always impressed him greatly. Having discovered this and not carring to distribute gold watches or even silver ones, Mr. Hayes hit upon the expedient of buying nickel watches at $36 a dozen and always made it convenient to have one with him against an emergency.—Kate Field's Washington. that this act would counteract the effect

As for me, I had enjoyed the proceedings to begin with, but now I began to be afraid. Precious time was being wasted. There were others who must use this road in returning from the ball, and there was the risk of their coming to the rescue of my dear uncle and spoiling the plans on which so much depended. Moreover, I conceived that my uncle would be hugely angry when he discovered how prettily he had been deceived. It was possible he might be carried by his resentment so far as to make it appear that this mock robbery was real and so bring Dick to serious trouble. Our Spring stock is particularly strong in Brussels, of self-colored designs, or two or three tones of colorings, with border to match. The same may be said of our assortment of Willons, for that matter.

Our line of these goods is unquestionably larger than that of any other Boston or New England dealer — very likely on a par with any house in New York, even.

We have for years made a specialty of exclusive styles, which are owned by us, and cannot be obtained elsewhere.

The present tariff (which only went into full effect Jan. 1) has combined with other causes to greatly lower the prices of all carpets, whether foreign or domestic.

This can be truly said of the Bryant & Stratton Commercial School of Boston, which, as our readers will notice by the advt. in this week's issue, will re-open Tuesday, Sept. 3rd. This school, which is the largest and most successful of its class in the world, really needs no recommendation from us. It stands at the head of all schools of a similar character. Its graduates can be found by thousands in the leading counting-rooms of New England, and it can be patronized with the most implicit confidence that nothing that is possible to be done for its pupils will be left undone.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE

"The Black Hussar" was given a monster production last Monday evening to a well filled house and was received with great applause. The summer season at the Castle Square Theatre is becoming very popular as the prices are very low. "The Black Hussars" with their military splendor are a beautiful sight. The stage pictures are fine. The mounted band and 80 people help to make the opera very attractive. Next week, a Castle Square production of everybody's favorite "Fra Diavolo" will be given, with new costumes, scenery, and stage effects. Remember the Castle Square Opera Company contains some of Boston's favorite singers and pretty girls. THE BOSTON.

"Trilby" is nearing the end of the third week of its run at the Boston Theatre and the interest in the play is on the increase and judging from the increase in the attendance "Trilby" could run all summer with profit to the managers. To the thousands who have read the novel and seen the play it is apparent that the latter differs materially from the former, while conforming to it in all the essential details and bringing out as with a diamond point the leading characters, Svengali, Trilby, Little Billee, the Laird, Taffy, Gecko and Mme. Vinard. The admirable manner in which the play is mounted, its elaborate setting and thoroughly artistic situations, command the admiration of all.

A VENETIAN MOONRISE.

No lingering line of light Streaks the dull west with fire The myriad lips of night Are vocal with desire, And, lo, the radiant moon Flowers from the black lagoon.

The Adriatic's bride,
Child of the shifting sea,
Lifts from the circling tide
Her olden majesty.
The moon's transmuting ray
Has glorified decay.

Afar the chiming joys Of bells are skyward rolled, While, petrellike, we poise On ripples of pale gold. An apotheosis An apotheosis
Of all youth's dreams is this.

As notes of music blent
In mellow harmonies fall
On listening ears intent,
So tower and dome and wall
Form to our wondering sight
A harmony of night.

Duncan Duncar, 10 of the state of the counce, who was so memorable a man in the history of British shipping that I cannot but pause a moment to refer to him.

To the eternal honor of Duncan Duncar be it said that he began life as a rag and bottle merchant and worked with such energy and skill that he died possessed of more than two millions of English gold and the finest flect of merchant ships at that time trading to all parts of the world from the river Thames. He was remarkable for his avarice, and many diverting stories of his cheeseparing struggles were current on board his own vessels.

Simpmen's bertil, peering fact and astonishment. Was this to be my home until I returned to England? Was yonder rade shelf to replace the white, soft bed I had been used to? It was the middle of the day. Yet but for the flame of a sputtering lamp, dangling like a coffeepot from the center of the upper deck, it would have been difficult to see. In fact, this compartment was lighted by three sentiles, or portholes, only, round bulls eyes of immensely thick glass, which were sunk low to the sea surface by the weight of the cargo, so that when our rabin was on the lee side these windows were always under water.

weight of the cargo, so that when our cabin was on the lee side these windows used the shipowner of today, who is with scarce an exception one of a company, Dunbar was the sole holder of his fleet. He died in 1861, and a portion of his great wealth went to Mr. Gellatly, a very kind, gentlemanly person, who had married the rich man's niece and for years managed his business down near the docks.

I went to sea as a midshipman in the merchant service. But this is a catchpenny term. Outside the royal navy there are no midshipmen. Consequently, as I did not ship as an apprentice, I must have signed articles as a boy simply.

I think the premium charged for the first voyage was 60 guineas. The outfit cost about 80. So that to send a lad on a voyage in those days was costlier to a parent than putting him to a first class school, where he would have got some education, perhaps learned good manners and probably acquired a taste for trade or one of the professions.

Certainly of the midshipman in the increase of the cargo, so that when our cabin was on the lee side these windows were always under water.

There were no chests in this berth, no place for such things—scarcely room, indeed, for a man's leg between the rows of bunks and the edge of the table. As I was going out a very tall, slim mid-shipman came in. His badge was dim, his buttons greenish. I, on the contrary, was most unhappily resplendent—a brand new sailor—and this old stager the action the less brutally mean and unnecessary.

"If you don't pay attention," said he, "to what's said to you, you'll be bald before we're out of soundings. What are you mousing about down here for?"

"I am looking for my sea chest, sir," I answered, beginning to think this tall midshipman a great and important person aboard the ship.

Grasping me by the collar of my jac't-et and the seat of my trousers he raised me high and strode with me, thus pillared, into the 'tween decks. #

"What's yourn name?" said he.

"Russell," said I.

"What a horrible name!" he exclaimed. "My name is Goole. How much better Goole sounds than Russell." He continued to hold me aloft. "What are your initials?" he asked.

"W. C. R."

"There you W. C. R., then!" said he. And he dumped me down as though I had been a sallor's bundle upon one of ten or a dozen sea chests, moored in all sorts of places in the steerage.

A midshipman's chest! It was called in my time "a hurrah's nest" because everything was always on top and nothing at hand. When I lift the lid of that chest in memory, I am visited by a faint, close smell of marine scap. I still possess the Bible I took with me, and the volume, like my memory, is haunted with that dim smell of marine scap in bars, by the impulse and influence of which I am able to see the ship, the gloomy 'tween decks, the midshipmen's

He took the head of the table. The "young gentlemen" sat upon the edges of their bunks on either side. An empty pickle case was passed along, and, topended, served me for a seat.

A boy waited upon us. They called him the midshipmen's servant. He had been in a man-of-war and was the smartest little sailor lad I can recollect. He danced the hornipic charmingly, was liberally tattooed over the arms and chest, walked with the flowing and knowing roll of the brine seasoned tar, and was, I think, about 15 years old.

He put a great dish of huge brows steaks upon the table, and then brouglpots of coffee, and loaves of bread, and salt butter, and we fell to amid a great inoise of talk and clanking of cheap cut.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had Consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida St. San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching Consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in Coughs and Colds. Free trial bottles at Gordon Parker's Drug Store. Regular size 50c. and $100.

Colds are probably the chief cause of tilness and disease among human beings. They give little trouble to animals, who wear no clothing. Arguing from these facts, some enthusiasts would say that the less clothing you wear and the more you expose yourself the healthier you will be.

The ARENA for May is an excellent number, and the high character of its contents is one of the encouraging literary signs of the times; for it shows that a large reading public is growing up in the United States that takes a keen interest in all the vital, social, value. The AGE has a field all to tself, for there is no similar publication in this country, and there is no one that an educated reader can less afford to deprive himself of. HARPER'S MAGAZINE for May contains for leading papers: House-Boating in China, The New Czar, A Frontier Fight, The Grand Prix and Other Prizes, Personal Recollections of Joan

There are many persons who go through the winter healthily in coton underwear, and these are probably the most fortunate class of the population. But the warmth preserving qualities of wool are not to be ignored.

One of its great properties is that it is a bad conductor of heat. The heat of the body, therefore, is not given out by it. It also does not stick to the skin and does not absorb perspiration freely. This is a quality of doubtful value. While it is agreeable not to have your underelothing glued to your skin it is injurious to carry a deposit of moisture which may become odd and de heave in all tarts of the series of papers discussing their grandmothers. A VENETIAN MOONRISE.

No lingering line of light Streaks the dull west with fire. The myriad lips of night Are vocal with desire, And, lo, the radiant moon Flowers from the black lagoon.

The Adriatic's bride,
Child of the shifting sea,
Lifts from the circling tide
Her olden majesty.
The moon's transmuting ray
Has glorified decay.

Afar the chiming joys
Of bells are skyward rolled,
While, petrellike, we poise
On ripples of pale gold.
An apotheosis

An apotheosis
Of all youth's dreams is this.

As notes of music blent
In mellow harmonies fall
On listening ears intent,
So tower and dome and wall
Form to our wondering sight
A harmony of night.

long afterward did this state of wretchedness last.

The emigrants were of the poorest and shabbiest. They were lodged in this part of the vessel, and they quarreled all the day, and their babies cried all night.

No one can imagine in this age of the steamship the sufferings which the emigrants underwent in the times of the sailing ship. They cooked their own food, and I have seen a crowd fighting like drunken seamen at the galley door for a place for their saucepans or kettles.

Not that the emigrant of today is a particularly well fed, well berthed man, but he is transported quickly. If his sufferings are keen, they are soon over. In my time they were uncommonly sharp, Woburn Real Estate Exchange. Real Estate & Business Brokers, 415 Main St. cor. Walnut, Woburn, Mass.

guineas for what was termed mess money. So here was another £120 odd pounds to add to the cost of the hire of a dirty little sea parlor in the bowels of a ship stuffed with cargo, bulkheaded off in that part of her of which the emigrants made a Whitechapel alley.

A boy is young at 13½, and I felt myself to be a very little fellow indeed when I stood in the door of that mid-phipmen's berth, peering into the gloom with eyes brilliant with fear and astonishment. Was this to be my home until I returned to England? Was yonder rude shelf to replace the white, soft bed I had been used to? It was the middle of the day. Yet but for the flame of a sputterbeen used to? It was the middle of the day. Yet but for the flame of a sputtering lamp, dangling like a coffeepot from the center of the upper deck, it would have been difficult to see. In fact, this compartment was lighted by three scuttles, or portholes, only, round bullseyes of immensely thick glass, which were sunk low to the sea surface by the weight of the cargo so that when our

To the eternal honor of Duncan Dun-bar be it said that he began life as a rag and bottle merchant and worked with such energy and skill that he died pos-sessed of more than two millions of English gold and the finest fleet of mer-chant ships at that time trading to all parts of the world from the river Thames. He was remarkable for his avarice, and many diverting stories of an athwartships upper bunk. The lower bunk was to be occupied by a lad a lit-tle older than I, just a little stronger, and, like myself, a first voyager. I knew my bed place by this token— to the bundle of bedding was attached a label bearing my name, "William Clark Russell, Midshipman, Ship Dun-can Dunbar, E. I. D." But where was my chest—the chest that contained my clothes? avarice, and many diverting stories of his cheeseparing struggles were current on board his own vessels.

Unlike the shipowner of today, who is with scarce an exception one of a company, Dunbar was the sole holder of his fleet. He died in 1861, and a portion of his great wealth went to Mr. Gellatly, a very kind, gentlemanly person, who had married the rich man's niece and for years managed his business down near the docks. There were no chests in this berth, no place for such things—scarcely room, indeed, for a man's leg between the rows

Certainly of the midshipman in the merchant service in my time not half remained at sea after the first voyage, and hardly a youth out of our numbers ever found a place upon the quarter deck, even in the laughably low capacity of fourth mate. Most of the captains and officers began as apprentices or rose from the forecastle.

I was 13 years and 7 months old when I went to sea and was undoubtedly too young for the vocation. I had no strength of body for the rough usage of the midshipman's berth. I was too tender to go aloft or to keep the deck through long, litter nights. ped?"

"There you W. C. R., then!" said he. And he dumped me down as though I had been a sailor's bundle upon one of ten or a dozen sea chests, moored in all sorts of places in the steerage.

A midshipman's chest! It was called in my time "a hurrah's nest" because everything was always on top and nothing at hand. When I lift the lid of that chest in memory, I am visited by a faint, close smell of marine soap. I still possess the Bible I took with me, and the volume, like my memory, is haunted with that dim smell of marine soap in bars, by the impulse and influence of which I am able to see the ship, the gloomy 'tween decks, the midshipmen's closer to his stateroom.

No work seemed expected of me. It was required, however, that I should not get in the way. As I succeeded in getting very much in the way I was purposely knocked about, and when at last I was bowled down the poop ladder by a handsome rush of brass bound "third voyagers" I was glad to take refuge, with black eyes and streaming nose, in the midshipmen's berth.

This was, in that ship, a narrow compartment in the steerage under the quarter deck. You reached it by a manhole called the booby hatch, down which sank a perpendicular hadder. All was gloom and misery and evil smells when Having dumped me down on my sea chest, he drove me up to the quarter deck, and thence on to tho to the quarter deck, and thence on to the poop. What now followed I cannot clear-ly remember. I recollect being greatly scorned by the younger midshipmen, and pitied and protected by the third mata. But whether I pulled at a rope or and they lasted four or five months.

The midshipman's berth was fitted with 12 bunks in double tiers. A nartow slip of table ran down the center. The edge of this table was like a saw from the action of the knives of the "young gentlemen," who used it for cutting up plug tobacco. I did not choose my bunk. It had been chosen for me. It was the most unconsistent with sea tradition, therefore, that the youngest and weakest should occupy it. PROVERBS ABOUT TREES.

eautiful Thoughts Finely Expressed by the Eloquent Hindoos.

Many are the proverbs relating to trees which are to be heard in India. Among the proverbs that speak of the panyan, there is one which says, "As the banyan, so are its hanging shoots; as the banyan, so are its nanging snoots; as the father, so the son." This probably means that if the tree be in good soil and well nourished it will be strong and thriving; so will its shoots. Just so the father's health and character will be reflected in his son. Tales of brinjals growing on a banyan tree is an expression equivalent to "travelers' tales" pression equivalent to "travelers' tales"

The wild figure is said not to flower at all, yet people believe that it really does so, only it is at night, and then but for a minute or two, although if procured it is ute or two, although if procured it is marvelously beneficial; hence it comes marvelously beneficial; hence it comes to be applied to a visit from a friend after long absence—a great rarity. Another form of it is, "To meet with the flower of the wild fig and to meet you are alike." There is a description of laziness than which it would be difficult to find anything more explicit, "To die from starvation beneath a ripe fig tree."

We had a brace made to keep the leg from cramping, and upon the doctor's advice we again took him to Boston, this time to the Children's Hospital. He was there three months during which time they made an operation on his leg and did all they could for him, but they did not effect a cure. When we brought him home had seven running sores on his leg. He could not put his foot on the ground. At last

A Parlor Recital.

Miss Nellie Platts, who for some years has taught large piano classes in this city successfully, gave a fine exhibition of her work in the shape of a parlor recital by her pupils at her home on Tuesday evening, May 28. It was a very pleasant affair. The pupils performed their parts remarkably well and the 75 parents and friends present, as well as the teacher, Miss Platts, were highly pleased with their proficency and the way they acquitted themselves. The following programme was rendered:

in those years it has had an experience and a career unequalled in the world's history.

It has many times traversed the Ather than the great Carnival in London in commemoration of the fiftieth year of the reign of Queen Victoria; it disputed with the Elife! Tower the palm for interest and success at the World's Fair in Paris in 1889; it traversed Europe, crossed the Alps and the Pyrenees, and camped beneath the walls of the Alhambra and within the vast interior of the Colosseum at Rome. Princes, potentates and powers have all been guests at its tables and have learned the lessons of the conquest of the New World from conqueror and conquered.

To give the performance in as complete form as it was given in Chicago is required an auxiliary corps of 400 employees, besides 400 arena performers, 800 in all. There are 225 draught horses which are used to haul the paraphernalia alone, besides the 300 horses used in the arena.

The entertainment, too, has been greatly altered, enlarged and improved during these past eight years. It sat at the gates of the Great Columbian Exposition at Chicago two years ago, and as "the key to ail," as it was justly called, rivaled in interest that greatest achievement of civilized man.

The many thrilling events which stirtle participants. The Indian at Linear in peace and war; his amusements and his labors, are all depicted. The life of the scout, the emigrant, the pioneer, the cow-puncher, and the express rider, are all fally illustrated with fascinating versimilitude.

Added to this is the great educational feature, presenting the Congress of " Cooking " Best Creamery Butter in 5 lb Boxes 25c. per lb. Best Creamery Butter in 1 lb cow-puncher, and the express rider, are all fully illustrated with fascinating verisimilitude.

Added to this is the great educational feature, presenting the Congress of Rough Riders of the World. From the plains of Tartary and the steppes of Russia, from the pampas of South America, and from the flying cavalry of all the great standing armies of Europe, they come to bid us view them in friendly rivalry.

The Philadelphia Ledger said a few days ago: "Anyone who misses seeing the show must be placed in the same category with the man who has never restartly them's Cabinator and the propitious events which enabled Colone Cody (Buffalo Bill) to get together this marvelous object lesson in history will never be repeated, and this opportunity to see them should not be neglected. It will be in Boston 2 weeks commencing Monday, June 10. Tea and Grocery House.

"Many of the citizens of Rainsville, Indiana are never without a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house," says Jacob Brown, the leading merchant of the place. This Remedy has proven of so much value for colds, croup and whooping cough in children that few mothers who know its worth are willing to be without it. For sale by A. W. Whitcher, druggist.

"WHILE WE HAVE TIME."

The peaceful hour of summer dusk is night Swift swallows hawk beneath an opal sky; Along the west faint bars of crimson disset, Under the low browed porch your chair is set, Amid sweet scents of muck and mignonette; You muse of things you sometimes half forget. Can you forgive her then?

Or when, within some sacred, ancient fane, Where holy rest and peace forever reign, As falls the tinted sunlight from the pane, Unto your ear the solemn words are given: "While we have time," "forgive and be fo

BOARDING SCHOOL.

The effort made by a mature mind to recall again its earliest impressions is a very curious thing. One evokes them. They rise up under the form of a very small person, whom one succeeds in detaching from one's self, but who neverthelees continues to make one body with what one has become. The impression as singular; it is multiform. The image of the vision of the "myself" is clear, well defined. As soon as one says to conseste, "When I was a child," one can see oneself as one was at certain hours, but as soon as one wishes to remember an event or question of fact one cannot escape from one's actual person, ality, and it is impossible to rid that fact or that event of its connections, of all its future consequences. One would like to describe childhood with childish words. One cannot do it.

"It is over two years that yon have they her, "adds my mother or a sister, I would give her to you, I assure you."

"Why has she neither a brother or a sister?" asked my grandfather, with a smile. "Is it our fault?"

I, too, ask myself why I have not a little brother or a little sister. I tell myself my grandmother is right, and that my parents from Blerancourt are that twent to dic, I should have wished for death.

"Will you keep still?" says the assistant teacher to me. "Will you be good?"

"Why has she neither a brother or a sister, I would give her to you, I assure you."

"Why has she neither a brother nor a little sister. I tell myself my grandmother is right, and that my parents from Blerancourt are the first cent this wicked woman, the first cenny that I have ever met. I threaten her. She places a piece of dry will you keep sod?"

Is it interesting for another mind than one's own to rehearse what one did at the age of 3 years? I fear not, yet nevertheless I will try. Since I run this risk, I desire to run it absolutely, and to describe in the most natural way possible what appears to me from out the other; in which they grow angry and seeds: in which they grow angry and seeds: in which they make we follottle by asking me:

One day—it was not a Sunday—my grandmother put on me a pretty white dress which she had embroidered herself, and she said to me: "This is your birthday. You are 3 years old on this 4th day of October."

"Three years!" These two words repeated themselves in my head. They had in them something grave and gay at the same time. To grow is the perpetual dream of childhood, which entertains some very surprising fllusions upon this subject. They said unceasingly around me, "She is tall for her age." I looked at myself. I thought ma?" unceasingly around me, "She is tall for her age." I looked at myself. I thought of the children who were smaller than I, and I found myself tall. and all other men who have to look neat while at work, should know about "CELULION" COLLARS AND CUFFS. They look exactly like linen, wear well and being waterproof do not wilt down with heat and moisture. They do not soil easily and can be cleaned in a moment by simply wiping off with a wet sponge or cloth. Do not confuse these in your mind with composition goods. Every piece of the genuine is stamped like this:

TRADE ELLULO 1 MARK.

Ask for these and refuse anything clse if you wish satisfaction. Remember that goods so marked are the only waterproof goods made by coating a linen collar with waterproof "Celluloid," thus giving strength and durability. If your dealer should not have the "Celluloid" send amount direct to us and we will mail you sample post-paid. Collars 25c. each. Cuffs, 50c. pair. Numerous volumes have been written by Chinese authors on tea and on its preparation. The well known writer, Lu-U, has, among others, produced an exhaustive work on the preparation of this beverage. The Chinese love to discuss matters pertaining to their favorite plant, and many curious lines appear in the national literature in praise of this fragrant herb.

As a rule the Chinese prepare their tea thus: A Ni-Hung pot, made of a species of terra cotta, with an unvarnished interior, is partially filled with rain or spring water and allowed to boil until a few bubbles begin to rise. ON CALAIS SANDS.

On Calais sands the gray began,
Then rosy red above the gray.
The morn with many a scarlet van Leap'd, and the world was glad with May:
The little waves along the bay
Broke white upon the shelving strands.
The sea mews fitted white as they
On Calais sands!

On Calais sands must man with man Wash honor clean in blood today; On spaces wet from water wan How white the flashing rapiers play, Parry, ripote and lunge! The fray, Shifts for awhile, then mournful stands The victor; life ebbs fast away On Calais sands!

On Calais sands a little space
Of silence, then the plash and spray,
The sound of eager waves that ran
To kiss the perfumed locks astray,
To touch these lips that he'er said "Nay,"
To daily with the helpless hands
Till the deep sea in silence lay
On Calais sands:

Between the lilac and the may She waits her love from alien lands.

A June afternoon in the year 1645 the great hall of Fane place was occupied by two persons. The windows were carefully shuttered, and only a small crack was left open to admit light. The door was closed. On the table were spread viands, and a gentleman in the dress of a Cavalier was hastily partaking of refreshments. His companion, a young woman of preposessing appearance, ministered deftly to his wants, laying her finger on her lips when he attempted to speak. MAILS FROM

000000000000000000000000 BOHEMIAN UPS AND DOWNS

'Way up in a garret high Just a few feet from the sky Dwell I in Bohemia. What care I for aught below? There have I nor friend nor fo Pity I the struggling throng While I live my life of song Up here in Bohemia.

'Tween my teeth my brier root— Best of friends, since always mute, Rare thing in Bohemia. Upward as the thick smoke curls What care I for simp'ring girls? Love is weak; my pipe is strong. Why for love, then, be the song Sung here in Bohemia?

Oft my little songs fall flat. Hungry? What care I for that, Passing in nonemia?
Put my only coat in pawn,
Live on that and still sing on,
Puff my pipe and think I've dined—
Barmecidal feasts I find Often in Bohemia.

Haply, then, my rhymelets take
With a check my fast to break,
Feast we in Bohemia
Round the corner of the block,
Sign, o'erhead a crowing cock,
Mug of beer and sandwich fine,
What care we how nabobs dine,
Feasting in Bohemia?

Priends have I some three or four— Quite enough, for who has more, In or out Bohemia? With them joy is always young; Grief is but a song that's sung. Live we, laugh we debonair, Skies are bright and winds are fair Always in Bohemia. 5. Campbell in Kate Field's Washington.

THE DOOMED SKATER.

We had cast our lot, my twin brothe and myself, in the roughest township of upper Canada. Twenty years are in upper Canada. Twenty years are in their graves since then—20 years rung out and rung in by the clang of the woodman's ax—and still that township lies in the heart of its primeval forest. Clotted woods overhang the solitary village, compaged of a few log huts, nightly drenched as with a death sweat from the malaria of the swamp. But we came, young and impressionable, from the old country on a venturous quest after fortune, and the disheveled wilderness of thicket had its charms for us. derness of thicket had its charms for us derness of thicket had its charms for us.

A river reft the huge tangle of the woods with its dark, sluggish waters, which crept and oozed in among decaying trees on either side. Banks there were none, and the bleached skeletons of the rotten trees alone marked off the channel of the river from the dark fen, fetid with wayind impurities. Such was fetid with myriad impurities. Such was the aspect of the melancholy Scugog. village was by no means a large The scattered huts which made it one. The scattered huts which made it up had been knocked together by a sprinkling of hardy pioneers on a solitary bluff which repelled the river from its base and gave the fearless settlers some ground of vantage over the surrounding swamp. There was not, however, much cleared ground—nay, very little. Everywhere we were hemmed in by battalion after battalion of monotonous trees. As for our fellow settlers, we found them of a piece with the country—rough and hardy, as they had need to be who 20 years ago colonized the Scugog.

But as for Jack, he was in rap-tures with everything that disquieted me. Nothing was more charmingly ro-mantic than our hut on the bluff and no river could equal the brown, melan-sholy Senger.

choly Scugog.

We did not settle down to the regulation life of the settler all at once. We determined to sip the nectar of life on the Scugog, if indeed there was any of that ambrosial draft to be drained in that ambrosial draft to be drained in the township. The fascination of the swift canoe kept us almost constantly on the dark, mysterious river, and, in truth, there was scarcely any other out-let from our dwelling save on its wa-ters. By day we fished, and we shot from our frail skiffs, and by night, when the moon was up, we would paddle them in her silvery wake. I have said that a few rough settlers formed our society on the Scurog.

I have said that a few rough settlers formed our society on the Scugog. Among them were some half breds—a species of degenerate Indian—who had sunk from the dignity of forest life to the servitude and buffeting of the white settlers. They were lazy, good for nothing fellows, except in the matter of fishing or shooting, wherein they were proficients. We found them useful in giving instruction in the canoe life of our river home. I preferred, for my own part, to go pretty much by myself on our water excursions. Jack, however, had no such idea of placid enjoyment, and speedily leaving me to my aquatic reveries he hired a hang dog looking soundrel named Olier to assist him in the management of his canoe. I am no great disciple of Lavater, but I never liked that half breed. All these dregs of Indian nobility are sallow, blear eyed creatures, with a world of cunning, but this fellow was chief of them all for every repulsive trait. Of course Jack ridicaled my sentiments about his new ery repulsive trait. Of course Jack ridi-culed my sentiments about his ery repulsive trait. Of course Jack rid-culed my sentiments about his new servitor. He was a match for half a dozen—20 fellows like Olier, he said, and it was all right, and I was not to bother my head about him. It was getting late in the fall. The Indian summer—that beautiful dream It was getting fact in the tain. The Indian summer—that beautiful dream of loveliness—had restored to us in evanescent beauty the glories of a Canadian autumn. The forests were as gay with color as a herald's tabard, and the with color as a herald's tabard, and the air was yet balmy with the lingering sweetness of summer. One exquisite evening, born of one of these lavely days, I was listlessly smoking as I lay on the top of the bluff, vacantly sketching home landscapes in the dark Scugog rolling beneath. A canoe shot round the bend of the river below the village. It was paddled by a solitary figure, who turned out to be Jack. I knew he had gone down the Scugog to fish along with Olier, but now no half breed squatted in the opposite end of the canoe. A vague dread seized upon me as Jack, running his little bark sheer up the bank, shouldered his paddle and marched upto me. "How now, Jack? What have you done with your charming companion?" I inquired, disquising my conjectural fear.

"How had by with the lingering sweetness of summer. One can do water where I dwelve I could proceed only from my own steady purpose and solitary endeavor. THAT'S QUEEN

That's Gueen to said the wished to see the falls, but it had been hitherto impossible to accomplish the distance by my single arm. At last my wish was to be gratified. A shooting party was made up by some of the villagers, and at my urgent request I was included. The arrangement was to spend a night at the falls, camping out on the bank, and return the following day. Instead of cannoes we were to sail down in a large flat bottomed boat, termed in Canadian parlance a scow. Strange to say, Jack did not care about going, saying that he would enjoy himself more in his own cannoe, and as we were already crowded for room we did not press him to change his resolution.

Our expedition had little in it note-

Our expedition had little in it note worthy. The river for over 20 miles ail remained the same monotonous sair remained the same monotonous, melancholy Sengog, never varying for the space of a hand. Not a vestige of clearance was there between our village and the falls, not a glimpse of bank. The trees lined the waters like a wall, and save the wild game no one ever tried to force a way through, their cleak lexit to force a way through their close knit to force a way through their close knit ranks, woofed at the base by a table of unwholesome vardure. This expect I had stern reason for remembering. The only bright thing was the patch of cloudless blue sky seen at the extremity of this long reach of wood and water. Over all brooded the intensest silence, No bird trilled us a single song; all was still save for the lugabrious woodpecker, which, perched on a rotting pecker, which, perched on a rotting cree, hammered its hollow sides with its beak. Tap, tap, tap! It was a most unearthly sound. unearthly sound.

We had seen the stupendous falls in their lonely majesty and were steering homeward in our scow. As we neared the village again, distant only some five or six miles, the sun was sinking behind the tree horizon. A slight blue haze bathed the long reaches of the river with ineffable softness and beauty. We voyaged on a liquid field of cloth of gold. But ever and again, marring my intense.

perception of its loveliness, came the ghastly tap, tap, tap of the woodpecker. I could not resist a chilly sensation of horzer as I listened to the measured cadence echoing through the solitude. It sounded like a coffin maker hammering at his dismal task. A relief suggested itself. Some of my companions were French Canadians and the evening before had cheered our bivoane with some gay refrains of sunny France. I asked them for a stave, but I said nothing about the woodpecker, whose note I wished them to drown. A strong chorus soon vanquished the bird of ill omen and rang up the vanlted river. I recollect the strain well. It was a favorite voyagers' ditty, sung to the dash of the bar.

Suddenly the song lulled, and again I shuddered as I heard the reverberating tap, tap of the ominous bird aloft on a spectral fir. My companions had ceased rowing, too, and called my attention to a cance which was floating down the river a few yards ahead of us. They thought it was a break loose and stood by to strike a boat hook into it, with the prospect of a reward from the owner up at the village. It soon dropped down to us and came, like the note of that ghostly woodpecker, tapping against our skiff. There was a stifled ery of horror from the settler at the bow, and as we erowded forward to see what was the crowded forward to see what was the crowded forward to see what was the shall not now detail the agonies of that Indian summer. Through all my grief ran the thought of an exterminating vengeance. Vengeance? Nay, scant justice. I sought what has been law since the world began—blood for blood. It was vain in those early times of a judicial system in Canada to seek for a rigorous pursuit from the dispensers of legal justice. The criminal executive might be willing, but their arm was weak. Retribution in the trackless wild of wood and water where I dwelt could proceed only from my own steady pur-

I inquired, disguising my conjectural fear.

"Gad! I don't know," replied my brother, sitting down oriental fashion beside me.

"Not know?"

"Not a bit," was his answer. "How should I be acquainted with all the ins and outs of that Rosamond's bower?" Here he indicated as much forest with his arms as would have made a fow circum when the reference is to went of the recesses of the forest below our village. "Oh, I perceive. He's gone tracking deer or something of that sort," said I, immensely relieved by Jack's manner. There was a slight pause. My fears returned. I felt there was something wrong.

"Well," said Jack, "I'll tell you. I don't see why there need be any scered that Olier, you were. He's a good for nothing fellow and coolly refused that olier, you were a bit farther than usual."

A terrible scheme of ven-geance swept across my soul, and I felt, no matter how fiendish the spirit, that the doom of the half breed was fixed, and that I was to be his unrelenting executinado with the paddle and set min ashore."

"Good heavens!" I exclaimed, with horror. "Don't you know, Jack—haven't you sense enough to understand—that these Indian fellows are vindictive to the last degree; that they will never forget or forgive a blow?"

"Pooh!" said he, getting up quite merily and marching homeward, saying over his shoulder: "Oh, don't you bother yourself! Olier will be down on the sneed of a young Canadian moon which sailed calmly through a cloudless sky. I could have shot the villain as he isn't. Besides, Iowe him half a dollar."

The story got tioner.
Night after night I lay concealed at the bluff awaiting the murderer. I was armed with pistols and wore skates. Skating was an amusement which I had were, much cleared ground—nay, very little. Everywhere we were hemmed in by battalion of monotomous trees. As for our fellow settlers, we found them of a piece with the country—rough and hardy, as they had need to be who 20 years ago colonized the Scugog.

We were twins, Jack and I, but otherwise unlike. He was a fine fellow. I acknowledged his supremacy and rejoiced in his bold, free spirits. From his childhood he had been the most impulsive creature that ever pointed a moral for headlong youth. Ever in scrapes and difficulties, but never to his dishonor, Jack fought one-half his acquaintances into loving him, which the rest did of their own free will, and my heart still warms involuntarily toward the wild, impulsive boy, with his headstherm of the wild wild wild wild with gigantic power over a lofty functional transfer batted and marked and both to which saided calmily through a cloudless which saided calmily through a cloudless. The moon lit me nobly to my vengeance. He could not escape me, for I found with savage glee that I was a match for the swift footed Indian. Olier soon became aware of this, too, for now and again he would skate close to the woods eliffs of chalky rock. No path could now be forced into the recesses of the forest below our village. Scarcely had winter settled down for his undisturbed reign when I heard whisperings that the villain half breed was again hovering on the outskirts of the settlement. It was told me that he was living in a kind of vigwam above the village, and also that he had more than once come to the very dwellings of the settlers by night to visit his friends and obtain various the vain to attempt to track him to his wigwam or, at all events, to surprise him. His woodcraft was much too deep to admit of such a possibility. But a strange, wild joy trembled through my being when I heard he came by night to the village. A terrible scheme of vengeance swept across my soul, and I felt, no matter how fiendish the spirit, that the doom of the half breed was fixed, and of several time fast. Still the walls were nearing them fast. Still the walls the count of the part of the country of several time fast. Still the walls were nearing them fast. Still the walls of several time fast, we want to woode a gain he woodl skate close to the woods looking in vain for an aperture. But no, there was but one outlet from this walled in river, and that was over the falls!

Faster and faster yet we skated toward the catmact. It could not be far off. I pictured to myself what Olier's thoughts might be. Did he know whither he was hastening, or had that awfull the rhe was hastening, or had that awfull thought. I saw him in the pale shim mer start convulsively and throw his arms in the air. But he dared not stop, and on he dareted again with a yell of despair, which echoed weirdlike up the frozen channel. Another sound came to my apple to the was but one outlet from this walled in river, and that was over the falls!

Faster and faster yet we skated toward the catmact. It could not be falls!

I pictured to myself what Olier's thought. I saw him in the pale shim mer start convulsively and throw his arms in the air. But he dared not stop, and on he dareted it was the dull thunder of the falls! We were nearing them fast. Still the walls of snow shut in my victim, and every moment lessened his thin loops of escape. One chance was left him—to distance me and hide somewhere in the snow from my scrutiny. Vain hope; the wings of the bird could scarce have saved him!

Hoarser and louder grew the noise of the waters. If I thanked the Almighty the waters. If I thanked the Almighty the waters. If I thanked the Almighty in frantic prayer that the murderer was delivered into my hand, I humbly trust that it is forgiven me now. From the time I had first started on Olier's track we had maintained exactly the same distance between us—perhaps about 100 or 150 yards. I still grasped my loaded pistols ready for any stratagem on the part of the numbers.

He was not armed. I had felt certain of that all along, for otherwise he would have measured strength with me before. Without abating my pace, I skated down upon him, holding a leveled pistal it each hand. Still my purpose was as fixed as ever only to shoot the villain as a last resource. When I was within 20 yards of him, the coward faltered and again turned swiftly down the river. With a yelling laugh I pursued him, pressing still more hotly on his track.

Deafening was the roar of the cataract. High into the pale sky ascended the mist of its spray, through which the splintered lines of the moonlight darted in rainbow tinted beauty. I could see directly in front the jagged line of the ice where it was broken by the rapids immediately above the cataract, and beyond Leould trees the dask you me of half breed turned his face toward me as I pressed, with concentrated hate, on his footsteps. Never shall I forget the horrible despair that distorted the villain's features. It was a mercy that the sullen roar of the falls drowned his curses—I knew he was shrieking curses on me—for they would have haunted me in after years.

With the courage which is begotten of the darkest despair, he dashed on to the brink of the rapids, and the next moment I was alone on the ice! I gazed with stern joy on the dark flood which had seized in its resistless hands the shedder of blood and was hurrying him over the falls. For a moment I thought ver the falls. For a moment I thought To the falls. For a moment I thought I could perceive the murderer struggling in the eddies, but the illusion, if it was one, could live only for an instant. The cataract was within pistol shot, and as I turned back over the dreary wilderness of ice and snow I knew that the doom of the guilty skater had been fulfilled.

Building a House In Bermuda.

Any man who chooses may scrape the thin coating of earth off from his proposed building site and proceed to lay up the walls of his habitation with the blocks sawed out in the process of excavating his cellar. Thus when the cellar is dug the house may be ready for roofing, and if enough roofing material has not already been accumulated in the course of the excavation it can easily be had by digging the cellar a trifle deeper, for the roofs in Bermuda are indeeper, for the roofs in Bermuda are in variably made out of thin slabs of thi variably made out of thin slabs of this same white coral rock. It has the advantage of being so soft that one may cut it with an ordinary handsaw 10 hours a day for six months or a year without refiling the saw. It may be sawed into slabs 2 or 3 inches thick and 18 inches or 2 feat saugare without parts. 18 inches or 2 feet square without par-ticular danger of breaking the slabs. It looks somewhat like a very soft, chalky variety of marble. Though so workable variety of marble. Though so workable when first quarried, it hardens upon exposure. Moisture permeates it easily, however, and it is desirable that a building should be covered with a thin coating of portland cement or a mixture of common plaster with cement. The coating is then treated with a heavy whitewash made of lime burned from the same eyer ready coral rock. The roofs same ever ready coral rock. The roofs and chimneys as well as the walls are kept constantly whitewashed and ar absolutely as white as the driven snow —Review of Reviews.

Three of the largest retail grocers in the United States have given unequalified statements as to the unvarying excellence of Pilisbury's Best during the last quarter of a century. That fact is a matter of common knowledge, and is the best protection which the manufacturers could have against any attack that could be made on them.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was not not seen of my wife. as the results were aimost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. Good Health

And a good appetite go hand in hand. With the loss of appetite, the system cannot long sustain itself. Thus the fortifications of good health are broken down and the system is liable to attacks of disease. It is in such cases that the medicinal powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are clearly shown. Thousands who have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla testity to its great merits as a purifier of the blood, its powers to restore and sharpen the appetite and promote a healthy action of the digestive organs. Thus it is, not what we say but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does that tells the story and constitutes the strongest recommendation that can be urged for any medicine. We had eagerly accepted her proffered companionship at Denver, a high official there having sent to us a message the day before we started for the plains that day before we started for the plains that he was anxious to avail himself of the opportunity of placing under the protection of a band of gentlemen a young lady traveler, who, having completed her education in St. Louis, was on her journey homeward to Santa Fe, where her father, a wealthy Indian trader, had long resided. This young lady had been visiting the governor's family in Colorado. The message added that her father would meet and welcome his young daughter at a well known trading sta-ratio. The message anget that her rather would meet and welcome his young daughter at a well known trading station some distance east of Santa Fe, at which point he would then be sojourning upon business.

Of course we all fell in love. I am not the last or least even probably to the pack mule. The lady's loveliness and good nature had wrought us all up to a state of idolatry and devotion. Her name was Pouchee—Pouchee Bloomingdale. Of course she never alluded to her pedigree, which was evidently mixed. Nor did we, but it was known to the soont Charlie, who had imparted it to us, that her father was a rich old Hebrew of Dutch extraction—Judah Blumenthal (his daughter having Anglicized her name), and it became gradually understood among us that her mother, anderstood among us that her mother, who had been a Pawnee squaw, was on the fine spring evening of our tar

"I like Italian serenades the best. They are entrancing,"

She sang it soft and low, a simple serenade, which might have been a lully by we all on the serial to a revenue of the serial supports laby, we all enthusiastically applauding at its conclusion. Abelson began to clap his hands, then checked himself, and "Curse his impudence," said I almost aloud. "I'll play no more," said Sergeant Maberly, throwing down his cards. "Let Mr. Breitman take my place if he likes.

Mr. Breitman take my place if he likes. Will you, sir?"

"Thanks, yes," said the second speculator, a slim, gray bearded man of 50.

"What are the stakes?"

"Cigars," said I, with a laugh.
The sergeant got up, walked off a way and stood gazing at the moonlit landscape. In a moment he strolled carelessly over toward the fair cruitarist. carelessly over toward the fair guitarist carelessly over toward the fair guitarist and dropped down likewise a short distance from her feet, but with great respect and reverence of manner.

Of course we watched him.

The other, Abelson, was obviously annoyed at the intrusion. He shifted himself restlessly and said with irritation:

"I can scent 'em with my eyes shut,

Abelson gave him an angry glance,
but made no answer, while the lady,

"To save our scalps," said Abelson, with a sneer, "for all the good the sol-diers would be."
"We look to the civilians for protec-tion," said the sergeant.
"One scout is worth ten of them," replied the other.
Miss Bloomingdale seemed suddenly to awaken to a realizing sense of the

"You're a grand player," he said at a pause in the singing, "and know lots of good pieces. Did you learn the guitar at school, may I ask?"

"Oh, no!" was the listless answer, "I learned when I was a child. A Mexican taught me. His name was Sanchez. He could play anything on the guitar from a waltz to an opera. He was hanged for stealing horses."

At that moment the horses, which had been tethered back of the tents, broke in upon the harmony with loud whinneying and restless movements, while Sleuth, our bloodhound, uneasily whined and growled by turns, as the mule set up a most discordant bray. Simultaneously we all sprang upright and stared inquiringly about us, but neither eye nor ear was able to distinguish a single sign of any interloper. Charley and the sergeant, however, raught up their rifles and paced 100 yards about the camp without discovering the slightest cause or pretext for alarm. Still the sentries were doubled, firearms were examined and placed bands. firearms were examined and placed handy, our bowies were unsheathed and kept by our sides, and it was decided that none of us should undress for slum-taken.

Bidding us good night, Miss Bloomingdale withdrew to her tent, while we ingdale withdrew to her tent, while we loitered awhile and smoked before retiring. After a time I turned in on my blanket with the others and fell speedily asleep, for one soon becomes indifferent to peril where perfect safety cannot be assured. I had slept perhaps an hour or two, when the sudden crack of rifles ruthlessly aroused me. I well knew what it was, what it must be—Indians! Instantly we were on our feet, weapons. what it was, what it must be—Indians! Instantly we were on our feet, weapons in hand and hurrying outside the tent. The crescent moon had set, the night was pitch dark, so that nothing could be seen, but wild, curdling noises broke on the ear. They came from Pouchee's tent. With an involuntary impulse I rushed toward it. Already it was filled with savages, grunting like swine together and braudishing their knives about with wildness. What was the excitement?

"And how did they chance to leave you?" I said.
"I could not get to sleep last night, and after awhile got up to look outside the tent, when I saw dark shadows stealing along the ground. At that moment the sentinels fired at random, and flying blinkly straight ahead I courtiyed with a funny chuckle. "I see you are master here. You are boss of this job." flying blindly straight ahead I contrived to dodge the savages and escape, thanks to my Indian blood. Afterward, from a distance, I saw them spring upon the horses, and yelling like fiends ride rapid-lesses, and yelling like fiends ride rapid-lesses.

Of course we could not stay there to Of course we could not stay there to starve, although I could have remained under such pleasant circumstances forever—for was not Pouchee with me? So we decided to walk on toward the sunset in hopes of something turning up. First, however, I arrayed myself in a full United States cavalry uniform, which the Indians had overlooked, and which I stripped from off the body of one of the dead soldiers. Then away we started on foot—one'sly and cheerfully started on foot-quickly and cheerfully started on foot—quickly and cheerfully over the plains.

I need not describe the ten happy days of that strange tramp. We lived sparse-pty enough on succulent grasses and drank at stagnant pools. I contrived to surprise at stagnant pools. I contrived to surprise and capture a few jackrabbits in their holes, which of course we were obliged to devour raw. At night we slept with-in hail in the thick grass, and in the morning we went on again as blithely as two half starved, thirsty, tired and wholly contented wretches could ever expect to do. It seemed like a dream at the time, and looking back a dream of bliss and peace and perfect love—for

To cut the story short, I may tersely state that both brave fellows had been wounded and captured by a roving band of Comanches, those Arabs of America, whom Seth Abelson, maddened by Pouchee's marked indifference to his suit, had instigated to that night attack suit, had instigated to that night attack upon our camp. Having met while straggling away in search of game a wandering warrior of that wicked tribe, he had induced him to influence his chief to sack the camp, with the design that he himself should kidnap the only daughter of the wealthiest man in Santa Fe and thus eventually obtain, perhaps, nossession of his money. However, supp. possession of his money. However, sum nary retribution overtook the traitor he was subsequently murdered by the Comanche chief for the sake of the gold which he was carrying about him in his belt.

By a strange providence the Indian band had afterward attacked the rescu-ing party on its way from Santa Fe. A desperate skirmish had ensued. The savdesperate skirmish had ensued. The sayages were signally defeated, and thus the sergeaut and scout had been restored to liberty. They had set the father on his daughter's track and sayed us in the

Although Corney Grain called himself a "poor entertainer," he was in reality of good family and welcomed everywhere in the best houses, not as an entertainer, for what he could do, but for what he was, and in his private careaity. Strangers who know, we think of for what he was, and in his private capacity. Strangers who knew nothing of his family could hardly be induced to believe that Corney Grain was not a nom de theatre, but was in reality his own given name. So it was, however, for he had been christened "Corney" from the maiden name of his paternal grandmother, who, I believe, brought some money to the exchequer of the Grains.

"Another cause of salivary indigestion which we should mention is the abundant use of sweets. In order that the saliva shall exercise its properties efficiently it is necessary that it should act in a suitable medium. A temperature of 100 degrees and an alkaline or neutral reaction are necessary for prompt and vigorous action on the part of the saliva upon the farinaceous elements of food. A low temperature hinders this action and acidity stops it altogether. The presence of a large amount of sugar is o hinders the action of the saliva.

the reason why so many persons find themselves unable to use acid fruits without fermentation. The acidity may be sufficient to neutralize the action of the saliva upon the starch.

"Evidently it is not only psychologically absurd to add sugar to farinaceous foods, since the starch, which composes one-half the weight of these foods, is all converted into sugar in the process of digestion, but the practice is also highly injurious, since it prevents the normal action of the saliva upon the starch. In this way sugar, preserves, sweet sances, confectionery, ice cream, cakes and other sweets are in the highest degree conducive to salivary indigestion. The consequences of salivary indigestion and intestinal colic, dilation of the stomach, catarrh of the stomach and intestinal colic, dilation of the stomach, catarrh of the stomach and soft foods and requiring patients to masticat thoroughly every particle of food swallowed. In many cases it is well to aid the process of salivary digestion by exposing the cereal food substances to the prolonged action of heat, thereby converting the starch into dextrin, rendering it more readily soluble, and hence more readily acted upon by the saliva. Granola and swieback are invaluable articles of food for use in cases of this sort. Almost romantically sad were the food is popularly considered to rest upon the advisability of separating it into small portions, so that when it reaches the stomach it may be better acted upon by the gastric pince. But important as this is, there is another reason—namely, the necessity of mixing the food well with the saliva, which has its own part to play in the digestive organs. It is just as necessary therefore to chew foods that are already mined or puly verized as those that require separation with the testit, and failure to do so properly results in indigestion. In Modern Medicine an interesting article deals with the evils resulting from imperfect mustication, which it calls. "Salivary Indigestion."

That is to say, familiarity with poker, instead of breeding contempt, inspires that respect which waits upon uncertainty and attends the unknowable. The best poker players are married men. The oftener a man is married the more modest he is about "sizing up" womankind. He loses confidence in his own judgment of human nature. He becomes wary. He lies in wait, never thoroughly satisfied in his own mind as to what will turn up next—never absolutely certain whether over against him is ace high or a royal flush—"bluff" or "a dead, lead pipe cinch."

It is only the young and inexperienced who know all about women. It is only the fresh young amateur who knows all about poker. And, like the man who staggers up against a roulette wheel for the first time, this sort of daring not infrequently wins where riper experience and caution quit the loser. Everybody has heard of the innocent who steps up and plants $1 or so on the winning OO and calls the turn on the last cards out of the box on the first deal—while the expert, with or without a system, is content with odd or even or plays the seven open and unostentationsly coppers the acc. So the same inexperienced player will sit down at poker and for a time baffle the wit of the keenest card sharp. His very ignorance of the rules of the game protects him.

44. "And He said unto them, These are the words which I spake unto you while I was yet with you, that all things must be folifilled which were written in the law of Moses and in the prophets and in the Psalms concerning me." This was on the evening of the resurrection day, after the two returned from Emmaus and were telling the gathered disciples what they had seen. Jesus Himself was suddenly in their midst, showed them His hands and feet and ate fish and honeycomb before them, then spoke as in this verse. After the resurrection, as before when He was with them in His mortal body, He insisted that the Scriptures must be fulfilled. He included all Scripture, the law, the prophets, and the Psalms, and never even hinted at the possibility of any portion being fullible or unreliable. He also added that all Scriptures concerned Himself. He is the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and end of all the book and of every part of it.

45. "Then opened He their understanding, that they might understand the Scriptures." Without a knowledge of the Scriptures. Without a knowled

Fuel is not sufficient to warm one; there must be fire. There is power in gunpowder and in dynamite, but something must make it manifest. These men were truly saved, but the Spirtt must take control of them specially for service.

50. "And He led them out as far as te Bethany, and He lifted up His hands and blessed them." The R. V. says "until over against Bethany." It is always blessed to follow where He leadeth. When He put teth forth His sheep He goeth before them. But we must not forget that at one time He was led by the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil (Luke iv, I., 2), and at the end of His ministry He was led as a lamb to the slaughter (Isa, liii, 7). The disciple is not above his Master, and a faithful witness must fear nothing, not even death (Math. x, 28).

He shall not fail nor be discouraged. He shall see of the travail of His soul and shall be satisfied (Isa. xlii, 4; liii, 11). We have only to dwell with Him for this work, and let Him work in us both te will and to do the things which are pleasing in His sight (I Chron. iv, 23; Phil. ii, 13; Heb. xiii, 21).

Burns. Strolling one day in Cumberland, the poet lost his friends, and thinking to find them at a certain tavern he popped his head in at the door. Seeing no one there but three strangers, he apologized and was about to retire when one of the strangers called out, "Come in, Johnny Peep," This invitation the convivial poet readily accepted and spent a very pleasant time with his newly found companions. As the conversation began to flag it was proposed that each should write a verse and place it together with two and six under the candlestick, the best poet to take the half crowns, while the unsuccessful rhymers were to settle the bill among them. According to Cunningham, Burns obtained the stakes by writing:

The Hon. F. D. Allen possesses a unique souvenir of his college days at Yale of which he is justly proud, and which he treasures very carefully. It is only a plain bit of cardboard with a hole in the center, but it has a history, for it is a memorial of the expert marksman ship of Professor Loomis, the famous mathematician.

One day in the classroom Professor Loomis, in illustrating the principle of the air gun, shot at the card as a target across the room. The old gentleman was a bit proud of his skill and the boys knew it. Were he ever to miss his aim, they would be extremely delighted, and on this occasion they thought they had our emancipation fron ture.—Dr. Martineau.

But the latter quietly picked up the little target and called attention to the fact that the original perforation was now enlarged, the second missile having struck the edge of the hole first made.

There June Arena comes as usual full of piquant discussion of alive and upto-date questions of interest. John Clark Ridpath appears as the frontispiece of the number and contributes An Epoch and a Book, recalling the condition in the South and the South-west before the War. The Editor of the hole first made.

There was never any doubt after that about Professor Loomis being a crack shot, and Frank Allen esteemed himself lucky in securing the card. That was over 20 years ago, and he has the card yet.—Boston Record.

The transitory mental aberration of Sidney Davidson, remarkable enough in itself, is still more remarkable if Wade's explanation is to be credited. It sets one dreaming of the oddest possibilities of intercommunication in the future, of spending an intercalary five minutes on the other side of the world or being watched in our most secret operations by unsuspected eyes. It happened that I was the immediate witness of David-

THREE SHIPS Three ships there be a-sailing Betwixt the sea and sky, And one is Now, and one is Then, And one is By-and-by.

The first little ship is all for you, Its masts are gold, its sails are blue, And this is the eargo it brings: Joyful days with sunlight glowing, Nights where dreams like stars are grow

The second ship is all for me
A-sailing on a misty sea
And out across the twilight gray.
What it brought of gift and blessing
Would not stay for my caressing.
Was too dear for my possessing,
So it sails and sails away.

The last ship, riding fair and high Upon the sea, is By-and-by. O wind, be kind and gently blow! Not too swiftly hasten hither. When she turns, sweet, you'll go with her, Sailing, floating hither, thither, pression was that he was drunk. He did not notice me. He was clawing out at something invisible a yard in front of his face. He put out his hand slowly, rather hesitatingly, and then clutched nothing. "What's come to it?" he said. He held up his hands to his face, fingers spread out. "Great Scott!" he said. The thing happened three or four years now when everyone swyore by PLUMBER.

he said. The thing happened three or four years ago, when every one swore by that personage. Then he began raising his feet clumsily, as though he had expected to find them plued to the floor.

"Davidson!" cried I. "What's the matter with you?" He turned round in my direction and looked about for me. He looked over me and at me and on either side of me without the slightest sign of seeing me. "Wayes." he said. sign of seeing me. "Waves," he said,

He jumped when I answered him and He jumped when I answered him and stared—how can I express it?—right through me. He began talking, not to me, but to himself. "Here in broad daylight on a clear beach. Not a place to hide in." He looked about him wildly. "Here! I'm off." He suddenly turned and ran headlong into the big electro magnet—so violently that, as we electro magnet-so violently that, as we electro magnet—so violently that, as we found afterward, he bruised his shoulder and jawbone cruelly. At that he stepped back a pace, and cried out with almost a whimper, "What in heaven's name has come over me?" He stood, blauched with terror and trembling violently, with his right arm clutching his left, where that had collided with the magnetic state.

excited. "Davidson," said I, "don't be afraid."

He was startled at my voice, but not so excessively as before. I repeated my words in as clear and firm a tone as I could assume. "Bellows," he said, "is that you?"

"Can't you see it's me?"

He laughed. "I can't even see it's myself. Where the devil are we?"

"Here," said I, "in the laboratory."

"The laboratory!" he answered in a puzzled tone, and put his hand to his jorchead. "I was in the laboratory—till that flash came, but I'm hanged if I'm there now. What ship is that?"

"There's no ship," said I. "Do be sensible, old chap."

"No ship!" he repeated, and seemed to forget my denial forthwith. "I suppose," said he slowly, "we're both dead. But the runmy part is I feel just as though I still had a body. Don't get used to it all at once, I suppose. The old shop was struck by lightning, I suppose. Jolly quick thing, Bellows—ch?"

Jolly quick thing, Bellows—eh?"
"Don't talk nonsense. You're very much alive. You are in the laboratory blundering about. You've just smashed a new electrometer. I don't envy you when Boyce arrives."
He started away from me toward the diagrams of eryohydrates. "I must be deaf," said he. "They've fired a gun, for there goes the puff of _moke, and I never heard a sound."

for there goes the pun of Janoke, and I never heard a sound."

I put my hand on his arm again, and this time he was less alarmed. "We seem to have a sort of invisible bodies," said he. "By Jove! There's a boat coming round the headland! It's very much like the old life, after all—in a different climate."

dimate.''
I shook his arm. "Davidson," I cried,

It was just then that Boyce came in. So soon as he spoke Davidson exclaimed: "Old Boyce! Dead too! What a lark!" "Old Boyce! Dead too! What a lark!"
I hastened to explain that Davidson was in a kind of somnambulistic trance.
Boyce was interested at once. We both did all we could to rouse the fellow out of his extraordinary state. Hegunswered our questions and asked us some of his own, but his attention seemed distracted by his hellogination about a breach and by his hallucination about a beach and by his hallucination about a beach and a ship. He kept interpolating observa-tions concerning some boat and the dav-its and sails filling with the wind. It made one feel queer, in the dusky labo-ratory, to hear him saying such things. He was blind and helpless. We had to walk him down the passage, one at each elbow, to Boyce's private room, and elbow, to Boyce's private room, and while Boyce talked to him there, and while Boyce talked to him there, and humored him about this ship idea, I went along the corridor and asked old Wade to come and look at him. The voice of our dean sobered him a little, but not very much. He asked where his hands were, and why he had to walk about up to his waist in the ground. Wade thought over him a long time—you know how he knits his brows—and then made him fee, the couch, entiting then made him feel the couch, guiding his hands to it. "That's a conch," said Wade. "The couch in the private room of Professor Boyce. Horsehair stuffing."

Davidson felt about, and puzzled over it, and answered presently that he could feel it all right, but he couldn't see it. "What do you see?" asked Wade. Davidson said he could see nothing but Davidson said he could see nothing but a lot of sand and broken up shells. Wade gave him some other things to feel, telling him what they were and watching him keenly.

"The ship is almost hull down," said Davidson presently, apropos of nothing.
"Never mind the ship," said Wade.
"Listen to me, Davidson. Do you know what hallucination means?"

"Well, everything you see is hallu-

"It seems to me that I see too much."

"It seems to me that I see too much." Davidson rubbed his kanckles into his eyes. "Well?" he said.

"That's all. Don't let it perplex you. Bellows here and I will take you home in a cab."

"Wait a bit." Davidson thought. "Help me to sit down," said he presently, "and now—I'm sorry to trouble you—but will you tell me all that over again?"

Wade repeated it very patiently. Davidson shut his eyes, and pressed his hands upon his forehead. "Yes," said he. "It's quite right. Now my eyes are shut I know you're right. That's you, Bellows, sitting by me on the couch. I'm in England again. And we're in the dark."

voice.

I thought he was up to some foolery.
Then I saw littered about his feet the shattered remains of the best of our electrometers. "What's up, man?' said I. "You've smashed the electrometer!"
"Bellows again!" said he. "Friends"

What's up to support the said he, "is the sun just rising, and the yards of the ship, and a tumbled say and a couple of birds flying. I never saw anything so real. And I'm sitting up to my neck in a bank of sand."

"Bellows again!" said he. "Friends left, if my hands are gone. Something about electrometers. Which way are you, Bellows?" He suddenly came staggering toward me. "The d——d stuff cuts like butter," he said. He walked straight into the bench and recoiled. "None so buttery that!" he said, and stood swaying.

I felt scared. "Davidson," said I. "What on earth's come over you?"
He looked round him in every direction. "I could swear that was Bellows. Why don't you show yourself like a man, Bellows?"
It occurred to me that he must be suddenly struck blind. I walked round the table and laid my hand upon his arm. I never saw a man more startled in my life. He jumped away from me and came round into an attitude of self defense, his face fairly distorted with terror. "Good God!" he cried. "What was thigh and stafely distorted with terror. "Good God!" he cried. "What was engaged, insisted on coming in to see him, and would sit for hours every day while he talked about this beach of his. Holding her hand seemed to comfort him immensely. imaginary island. He kept saying he should smash all the eggs. The end was that he had to be taken down to his father's consulting room and laid upon a couch that stood there.

I remember one odd thing, and that was he wanted very badly to smoke. We put a pipe in his hands—he almost poked his eye out with it—and lit it. But he couldn't taste anything. I've since found it's the same with me—II don't know if it's the usual case—that I tannot enjoy tobacco at all unless I can see the smoke.

He described the island as being a bleak kind of place on the whole, with very little vegetation, except some very little vegetation, except some peaty stuff and a lot of bare rock. There were multitudes of penguins, and they made the rocks white and disagreeable to see. The sea was often rough and once there was a thunderstorm, and he lay and shouted at the silent flashes. Once or twice seals pulled upon the beach but only on the first two or three.

Once or twice sais pulled upon the beach, but only on the first two or three days. He said it was very funny the Way in which the penguins used to waddle right through him, and how he seemed to lie among them without disturbing them.

But the queerest part of his vision came when Wade sent him out in a bath chair to get fresh air. The Davidsous hired a chair and got that deaf and obstinate dependent of theirs, Widgery, to attend to it. My sister met them in the lower town, Widgery trotting along complacently, and Davidson evidently most distressed, trying in his feeble, blind way to attract Widgery's attention.

blind way to attract Widgery's attention.

He positively wept when my sister spoke to him. 'Oh, get me out of this horrible darknesq.'' he said, feeling for her hand. ''I must get out of it, or I shall die.'' He was quite incapable of explaining what was the matter, but my sister decided he must go home, and presently, as they went up the hill, the horror seemed to drop from him. He said it was good to see the stars again, though it was then about noon and a blazing day.

Of course, '1 said he. "It's always night there when it is day here. Well, we went right into the water, which was calm and shining under the moonlight—just a broad swell that seemed to grow broader and flatter as I came down into it. The surface glistened just like a skin—it might have been empty space underneath for all I could tell to the contrary. Very slowly, for I rode slanting into it, the water crept up to my eyes. Then I went under and the skin seemed to break and heal again about my eyes. The moon gave a jump up in the sky and grew green and dish, faintly glowing, came darting round me, and things that seemed made of luminous glass, and I passed through a tangle of seaweeds that shene with an oily luster. And so I drove down into the sea, and the stars went out one by one and the moon grew greener and darker and the seawed became a luminous proper red. It was all very faint and mysterons and everything seemed to by the start of the seawed became a luminous proper red. "And then I saw, coming very slowly toward me through the gloom, a hazy mass of light that resolved itself as it drew nearer into multitudes of fishes, struggling and darting round something that drifted. I drove on straight toward it, and presently I saw in the midst of the tumult, and by the light of the fish, a bit of splintered spar leoming over me and a dark hull tilting over and some glowing phosphorescent forms that were shaken and writhed as the fish bit at them. Then it was I began to try to attract Widgery's attention. A horror came upon me. Ugh! I should have driven right into those half eaten—things. If your sister had not come! in this singular state, seeing what at the time we imagined was an altogether phantasmal world, and stone blind to the world around him. Then, one Tuesday, when I called, I met old Davidson in the passage. "He can see his thumb!" the old gentleman said, in a perfect transport. He was struggling into his overcoat. "He can see his thumb, Bellows!" he said, with the tears in his eyes. "The lad will be all right yet." I rushed in to Davidson. He was holding up a little book before his face and looking at it and laughing in a weak kind of way.
"It's annazing," said he. "There's a kind of patch come there." He pointed with his finger. "I'l' men the rocks, as usual, and the penguins are staggering

It's like a hole in this infernal phantom world. Just put your hand by mine. No—not there, Ah, yes! I see it. The base of your thumb and a bit of cuff! It looks like the ghost of a bit of your handsticking out of the darkling sky, Just by it there's a group of stars like a cross coming out.'

seemed only too anxious to complete his cure by taking exercise and tonics. But us that odd island of his began to fade away from him he became queerly injerested in it. He wanted particularly to go down into the deep sea again, and would spend half his time wandering about the lower town, trying to find the water logged wreck he had seen drifting. The glare of real daylight very soon impressed him so vividly as to blot out everything of his shadowy world, but in the nighttime, in a darkened room, he could still see the white splashed rocks of the island and the clumsy penguins staggering to and fro. But even these grew fainter and fainter, and at last, soon after he married my sister, he saw them for the last time.

And now to tell of the queerest thing of all. About two years after his cure I dined with the Davidsons, and after dinner a man named Atkins called in. He is a lieutenant in the royal navy, and a pleasant, talkative man. He was on friendly terms with my brother-in-law, and was soon on friendly terms with me. It came out that he was engaged to Davidson's cousin and incidentally he took out a kind of pocket photograph case to show us a new rendering of his season. What is a lieutenant in the was engaged to Davidson's cousin and incidentally he took out a kind of pocket photograph case to show us a new rendering of his season. What is the cause of that tired, languid feeling which afflicts you at this season. The blood is impure and has became this and poor. That is why you have no strength, no appetite, tone your stomach, and invigorate your nerves.

"This coin you gave me reminds me of some women." said the conductor, throwing the counterfeit nickel over this hand. "How so?" asked the curious passenger. "Fare, but false," and was soon on friendly terms with me. It came out that he was engaged to Davidson's cousin and ineidentally he took out a kind of pocket photograph case to show us a new rendering of his fiancee. "And, by the way," said he, "here's the old Fulmar."

Davidson looked at it cases?"

Davidson looked at it casually. Then suddenly his face lift up. "Good heavens!" said he. "I could almost swear"—" "What?" said Atkins.
"That I had seen that ship before." "Don't see how you can have. She hasn't been out of the South seas for six years, and before then"—" "But," began Davidson, and then: "Yes. That's the ship I dreamed of "There is dan".

"But," began Davidson, and then:
"Yes. That's the ship I dreamed of.
I'm sure that's the ship I dreamed of.
She was standing off an island that swarmed with penguins and she fired a gun."
"Good Lord!" said Atkins. "How the deuce could you dream that?"
And then, bit by bit, it came out that darker and the seaweed became a luminous problem. That completes the remarkable story of Davidson's eyes. It's perhaps the best authenticated case in existence of a real vision at a distance. Explanation? There is none forthcoming, except what Professor Wade has thrown out. But this explanation invokes the fourth dimension and a dissertation on theoretical links of space. To talk of there being and through me, I never imagined such fishes before. They had lines of fire along the sides of them, as though they had been outlined with a luminous pencil.

"A cat," said Tommy, "has to be killed nine times before it's dead."
"That's nothing," said the neighbor's

MOTHER'S BOYS.

Yes, I know there are stains on my carpet, The traces of small muddy boots, And I see your fair tapestry glowing, All spotless with blossoms and fruits.

And I know that my walls are disfigured With prints of small fingers and hands, And that your own household most truly In immaculate purity stands.

And I know that my parlor's littered With many old treasures and toys, While your own is in daintiest order, Unharmed by the presence of boys.

And I know that my room is invaded Quite boldly all hours of the day, While you sit in yours unmolested And dream the soft quiet away.

While you can go out in your carriage
And shine in your dresses so bright.

Now, I think I'm a neat little woman.

No; keep your fair home with its order, Its freedom from bother and noise,

ANDY COPLEY'S LIE.

Of the old folk of the bleak little sea-port, Andrew Copley dwells most vivid-iy in my memory. As prosperity is gauged at Port St. Bede, Andrew, the owner of some half dozen fully equipped fishing smacks, was accounted a prosperous man. I recall him now—his kindly face, tanned and netted in wrinkles; his long hair, grizzled this many a day; his stubby gray beard; his light blue eyes, bespectacled for reading—yes, there he sits. Many are the "cracks" I have had with him. Yet there was one story he chose to leave buried in silence—and that his own. I never dared owner of some half dozen fully equipped story he chose to leave buried in silence —and that his own. I never dared broach the topic, albeit I inwardly burned with impatient curiosity. One day, however, the history became mine unsolicited. Some remark I chanced to let slip anent his lifelong bachelorhood caused an infrequent faraway look to settle upon his eyes. We were walking up the steep, cobble paved "street" at the time, past the lime washed front of the Trawlers' inn to the higher ground, the Trawlers' inn to the higher ground, which the old Norman church from which the old Norman church tower kept ward over the slumberous village.

"Why ha'e I never married, say ye?" the old man exclaimed after a long spell of silence. "Like enow, ye'll hear afore long, an I don't see what should stop me fro' tellin ye mysen, if so be." Hurriedly stepping into the roadway, Andrew whipped off his broad brimmed hat and stood motionless. Turning into the sanded lane that zigzagged past the church, we had well nigh jostled two slow paced women, the younger of them about 50 years of age, the elder 20 years or so older. It was the latter that attracted my marked regard, for it was tracted my marked regard, for it was toward her that Andrew held his down bent head. A wan, frail looking crea bent head. A wan, frail looking creature she was, dressed in black, with a close fitting, old fashioned bonnet tied under her chin in a bow of broad black ribbon. Her hair, smoothed evenly upon her forehead, shimmered silverly as the new churned foam in the bay. She moved haltingly, even with the aid of an oaken staff and the helping arm of her convention.

the pathway and pointed her stick to-ward the bareheaded old fisherman. In thin, quavering tones, as if the words were said by rote, there being no vehemence in her utterance, she cried:
"Ah, I knaw ye—I knaw ye. Ban ye, for no speakin me fair." With no more than if she were repeating some Andrew Copley! It was a lie! Curse ye Unresisting, the old lady allowed herself to be led away. Through it all Andrew did not stir a limb, but stood there with doffed hat, his head bowed and his

So he began upon his life story. But as his narrative would be hard to follow if I adhered to his exact words, with his numerous digressions and irrelevancies, attered with quaint bur of tongue, and, moreover, as his modesty saw fit to gloss over certain facts which I heard of later in other quarters, I venture to set it forth after my own fashion.

We hark back a full half century. Port St. Bede—mo vast size at this present—was then a mere nest of sandstone, shale roofed cottages, planted at the foot of the hill and straggling disjoint-sdly up to it from the "street." Later improvements have displaced or rebuilt most of these one storied dwellings and illed in the gaps, but the old Trawlers' inn looks just as it looked 50 years ago. It lies back some ten paces from the roadway, the shingled space thus obtained being highly favored of loungers and gossips. The spot served an identical purpose so far back as the oldest memory goes.

He stuffed the letter into his jacket pocket long before he came abreast of the cottage. Rapping a tattoo on this door, he lifted the latch, and—as was the custom—walked straight in. A slim, fair haired girl peeped into the room from a side door. "Oh, it's you, Andrew," she said, coming forward. "Aye, it's me. I cam' just to ask how your mother is today."

"She's a piece better this morn, but she rested ill last night. Nellie an me sat up wi' her most all night, but she's dropped off asleep now. Tak' a chair, Andrew."

Andrew perched himself on the edge of the nearest rush bottomed chair and fumbled hesitatingly with his cap between his knees. "I was doon by the Trawlers' when the letters came," he said after a strained interval. "There was one for ye, Hilda, an I made free to say I'd bring it. Here 'tis."

"For me!" and Hilda's eyes brightened as she stretched out her hand.
"Then it's fro' Ben, isn't it, Andrew?"

"It's the Grimsby mark," replied Andrew shortly.

Andrew shortly.

"Then it must be fro' Ben. He said he'd let me know as soon as the brig got back to Grimsby. An how I trembled for him all through that storm o' Monday! But he's safe—this shows he's safe, Andrew." "Read it to me," cried Hilda, thrusting the missive into his hands. "Ye know I can't mysen. Read it, Andrew," Taking firm grip of his lips, Andrew opened the letter and glanced at the signature. "It's noan fro' him," he said. "It's wrote by Peter Worsley, the skipper o' the Vampire."

"Not fro' Ben!" exclaimed Hilda tremulously. "He isn't—dead?"
Andrew nodded. "Drowned!" he murnared huskily.
Clutching at her throat, Hilda sank into a chair and hid her face in her palms. Presently she looked up, her lips pallid, her cyclids scarlet. "I can bear it now, Andrew," she said. "Read it all to me."

The caligraphy of the Vampire's master must have been all but illegible, judging from the difficulty Andrew had in deciphering it. He read slowly, humming and hawing through the whole epistle. Here is the gist of it. In the recent heavy gales the Vampire—a crazy, undermanned timber ship—had sprung a leak, her crew being eventually compelled to abandon the foundering vessel and take to the longboat. WORKING GIRLS.

WILLING, ABLE, AND AMBITIOUS. But Often Held Back by an Illness They do not Understand.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

With the sunshine and gladness all crushed out of her life, she goes on until she falls.

Oh! this pictures only one of thousands. Some work in cramped positions, but the great majority of working girls, so to speak, live on their feet.

Among the latter the symptoms of female diseases are early manifested by weak and aching backs, pains in the lower limbs and lower part of the stomach. The "monthly period" is irregular: with some profuse, with others a cessation. The sure symptom, leucorrhea, is present, and with faintness, weakness, loss of appetite and sleep. She may be sure that a womb trouble assails her. She knows not where to go for aid.

Mary had plodded through the letter so far when Hilda, with a loud shriek, dropped back upon her pillow. Abel and his wife hastened up stairs to find her again sitting up in bed, round eyed and gesticulating with her clinched fists. 'I might ha' won him back—I would ha', '' she cried shrilly. In this fashion she raved all through the night and long into the next day. Dr. Rateliffe said it was brain fever, and although he eventually thought her backet shelfs health has a single properties of the state health has single properties.

of the Second Quarter-Golden Text, Heb. xii, 2—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

M. Stearns.

Lesson I.—The Triumphal Entry (Mark xi, 1-1). Golden text, Mark xi, 9. "Hosanna, blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord." His knowledge of all things and His control over all things may be dwelt upon with great profit. Even the untamed ass' colt is perfectly submissive to Him. His entry into Jerusalem in this manner, which was a liberal fulfillment of Zech, ix, 9, teaches us to believe that the other prophecies of Zech, id, 4, 12; vi, 13; viii, 3; xii, 10; xiv, 3, 4, 9, and many such like, shall be just as liberally fulfilled.

Lesson II.—The Resurrection—An Easter Lesson (I Cor. xv, 20, "Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept." Unless Christ had risen from the dead there would have been no alvation, no forgiveness of sins, no gospel to preach. But during the 40 days between His resurrection and ascension He was seen and tabled with by many people who were His disciples on at least ten different occasions, and after He ascended visibly to heaven he was seen by Saul and Stephen and John.

Lisson III.—Watchfulness (Math. xxiv, 42-51). Golden text, Mark xili, 33, "Take ye heed, watch and pray," This is called a temperance lesson, and if received into the heart would greatly tend to make us temperate in all things. There is nothing so purifying and separating and inspiring so to be constantly watching for the coming of the Son of Man. Three essentials of a good servant are given—ready, faithful, wise. Ready to meet his Master at any moment, faithful to his Master's affairs at all times, and wise in his watchfulness and cititathese kis lawn, filled and prightly:
